Season's First Big Snow Factor In 2 Car Deaths

By ALAN AREND,
Staff Writer

The season's first heavy snowfall zapped southwestern Michigan and northern Indiana Friday, burying parts of the area in up to 12 inches of snow and contributing to two traffic deaths.

Hardest hit was the St. Joseph-Baroda area in Berrien County and the South Bend, Ind., area where over a foot of snow was recorded. Other areas in southwestern Michigan reported from three to eight inches of wind-blown snow. Areas inland from Lake Michigan apparently were not as hard hit by the storm.

The blizzard raised havoc with area motorists as police agencies reported hundreds of stranded vehicles.

Police said slippery roads also contributed in the traffic deaths of Karl Schlupp, a 65-year-old Eau Claire man fatally injured in aodus Township car-pedestrian crash Friday afternoon, and Sheryl Meyer, a 20-year-old Holland woman who died in a one-vehicle accident in Allegan County Friday night.

Steadily dropping temperatures and the drifting snow forced the state police to close the westbound lane of Interstate 94 from Watervliet to New Buffalo late Friday night. The stretch was reopened around 2 a.m., police said.

Thomas Webb, engineer-manager of the Berrien County Road Commission requested that all motorists stay at home today so as not to interfere with road crews attempting to dig the area out.

He said stranded autos have already caused problems, blocking snow plows.

The forecast for southwestern Michigan calls for mostly cloudy skies tonight with a chance of snow toward morning. Temperatures are expected to range in the low teens tonight.

A winter storm watch has been issued for Sunday, with continued cold temperatures. Probability of measurable precipitation is 30 percent tonight and 60 percent Sunday.

Webb said the area hardest hit in Berrien County was along the lake, with the south St. Joseph area to Baroda the worst.

"Another big problem is getting our own people into work," the road commission head said. "They get stuck in driveways, too."

Other recorded snowfalls throughout the area were as follows: Buchanan-Niles area, 5-7 inches; Eau Claire-Dowagiac area, 4-6 inches; New Buffalo city, 5 inches; South Haven, 3-4 inches.

Paul Kaiser, engineer-manager of the Van Buren County Road Commission said Van Buren County generally

Boys Slide Downhill To Death

ROCKFORD, Mich. (AP) — Two young boys enjoying the first heavy snowfall of the season were killed Friday when they sledged into the path of an oncoming car, state police reported. The victims were identified as Jeff Weir, 12, and Donald Boukma, 10, both of Rockford, north of Grand Rapids.

The two boys were riding together down "the only real good sledding hill in the area" less than one-quarter of a mile from their homes when the accident occurred about 11 a.m., reported trooper Bruce Pollock. Their sled reached the bottom of the hill and careened onto Twelve Mile Road in front of a car being driven by Scott Powell, 16, of Rockford. Powell's car ran over the boys, dragging them on the snow-covered road before they were thrown clear, state police reported.

"They came down right in front of him," said Pollock. "By the time he (Powell) put the brakes on, he had hit them."

Trooper Terry O'Dell of the Rockford post in Kent County said it appeared the youths suffered multiple skull fractures and were killed instantly. The driver will not be charged, O'Dell said. The accident occurred in rural Courland Township outside Rockford. The boys were sledding down a hill at the home of a friend, state police reported.

'Just Plain Ol' Broke,' Farmers Say

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Complaining that they're "just plain ol' broke," thousands of farmers clogged Main Street with their tractors, creating one of the biggest traffic jams President Carter's hometown has ever seen.

"We're here today because we're broke," Tommy Carter of Alma, Ga., told the farmers, who police said filled this tiny town with between 10,000 and 15,000 tractors.

"Suppose next week or next month you came home from work, turned on your TV and the commentator had this to say: 'In the headlines, the last of the large American farms has been sold to a major oil company,'" said Carter, who is no relation to the president. "This could very well happen in the near future, if we do not unite."

Friday's demonstration was sponsored by American Agriculture, which has threatened a nationwide farm strike Dec. 14 unless Congress guarantees profits for farmers even when weather affects the harvest.

Tractors bearing signs reading "Hell No, We Won't Grow," and "America Grew Up with the Farms, Don't Let Them Die," parked in one 150-acre lot and overflowed into another.

The tractors, which began to roll into the area late Wednesday and Thursday, tried to move four abreast through the town, but the only traffic light — installed after Carter was elected president — was no match. At one point, traffic was backed up from Plains to Americus, about nine miles away, said a spokesman for the Sumter County Sheriff's Department.

State Sen. Hugh Carter, the president's cousin, told an estimated 50,000 persons that he was "in complete sympathy with you and I believe the president is."

"I've had no communication with him, but I believe he is," he said. "It's just my opinion."

Many farmers had hoped Carter would return home for the Thanksgiving holiday, but the president and his wife and daughter remained at Camp David, Md., for the holiday weekend.

Tom Kersey, Georgia farm strike coordinator, said he believes farmers have a good chance of obtaining congressional support.

"We haven't got the vote, but we've got the food," he said. "They may not know it yet, but we've got the support."

Mayor Pro Tem Baze Gaddin, who operates a pharmacy, said residents are behind the farmers "because this is a farmer's community."

But the president's brother, Billy Carter, was less enthusiastic as he watched from his service station.

"I neither support it nor disagree with it," he said. "I'm not a farmer."

How Nader Rates State Lawmakers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are the 1977 ratings Michigan members of Congress received from Public Citizen, a Ralph Nader-affiliated group which says it is pro-consumer.

The ratings are based on 40 roll calls on such issues as consumer protection, oil and gas policy, atomic power, tax revision, ecology, government subsidies and government revisions.

For instance, a rating of 90 percent means the member voted with the group's own views on 36 of the 40 votes.

Democrats — Blanchard 78; Bonior 90; Brodhead 88; Carr 80; Conyers 83; Diggs 68; Dingell 70; Ford 70; Kildeer 90; Noddi 78; Traxler 78.

Republicans — Broomfield 28; Brown 15; Cederberg 18; Purcell 45; Ruppe 36; Sawyer 27; Stockman 30; Vander Jagt 28.

Here are the Public Citizen ratings for Michigan senators:

Democrat Riegle 69;

Republican Griffin 23.

Winning Numbers

DETROIT (AP) — The winning numbers in Friday's regular weekly Michigan lottery are: zero-one (01) and one-nine-eight (198).

The winning number in Friday's daily Michigan Lottery game is eight-one-two (812).

Next Move Up To Russians

BARROW, Alaska (AP) — U.S. scientists are tracking a pregnant polar bear who evidently has little respect for convention or international borders.

The bear was tagged with a special radio transmitter by a federal research team last June as she wandered north of this Arctic coast community.

But in September, she headed west and crossed the Bering Sea ice into Siberia. Her radio signals are coming in loud and clear from the Soviet Union via satellite for readings by U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service researchers in Barrow.

She was one of two bears tagged at the time, according to project leader Jack Lentfer.

Lentfer said he has written his counterparts in Moscow, asking their help in tracking the bear or permission to follow her into Siberia to recover the transmitter.

The device cost about $5,000 without development costs, he said.

Lentfer said he has not yet received any direct response from Soviet wildlife officials.

Momentum Needed To Implement Sadat's Overture To Israel

Overlooked in the euphoria created by the Egyptian premier's visit to Jerusalem a week ago is the shift in emphasis it puts on the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Since Israel's creation as a state 30 years ago by a United Nations resolution and the border state of siege it engendered the argument has been the ideological debate on Israel's right to exist.

It has been vociferously propounded by the Israelis to the extent of maintaining it and not who occupies what territory is the road block to peace. It has been denied by the Arab states with equal vehemence.

Sadat's speech before the Israeli parliament redistributed the two issues.

The Arab world, he said, recognizes Israel's right to existence.

Basic to his suggestion is the return of Arab territory seized in the 1967 six-day war and the recognition of the Palestinian Liberation movement as a government equal in legitimacy to Israel, including the right of a territorial homeland.

Receiving less attention from the news media than it deserved was a third point laid down by Sadat.

Peace, he said, can not be a mere cessation of hostilities along sealed frontiers which is the status of the armistice reached a year ago.

Borders must be open, diplomats exchanged, trade and communications between neighbors must be established.

While stating the obvious that an enduring bargain is one which is fair to all parties to it, Sadat was delivering a message to his Arab compatriots.

Egypt is the only Arab country capable of leading and sustaining a war against Israel.

This makes Egypt the only member on the Arab team with sufficient bargaining leverage to enter into a unilateral peace with Israel which, among other things, could deliver the Sinai peninsula back into Egyptian possession.

It is this unpleasant reality which stirs the volatile elements in the Arab world, Libya, Iraq and the PLO extremists, to such harsh denunciation of Sadat.

Publicly the Syrian man in the street voices the same sentiment, but thus far his governmental leaders have refrained from taking a public position.

Supporting Sadat in his assertion that the time has long been overdue to settle the conflict are Jordan, the Sudan and implicitly, Saudi Arabia.

For what it is worth, the division within the Arab world falls along two lines.

The responsible leadership in the Arab states knows nothing is to be gained through protracted hostilities, and those Arab states which have suffered the most through three decades of war want to bring the conflict to an end.

Those farther removed from the battle scene and those governed by inflammatory leaders insist on continuing the dispute to the death.

This should be apparent to those in charge of Israel's affairs.

It should also be equally apparent their stand on ideology is no more valid than the wild accusations emanating from Libya, Iraq and the PLO intransigents.

Sadat has given the Israelis a sound opportunity to come forward to the peace table and to make the reasonable concessions which are vital to arriving at a viable contract.

Pundit Eric Sevareid
Signing Off Television

"I'm going to have to retire at the end of this year," Eric Sevareid said. "What advice have you got for someone like me?" The question was asked of Anne Morrow Lindbergh last May when she appeared with him before a national television audience in a CBS News special, "Conversations with Eric Sevareid." To the obvious amusement of both, she replied: "I don't think you need any advice. I think you have a great many resources."

The resources of his mind have been apparent to American listeners, and later viewers, of his broadcasts since the early dark days of World War II. War correspondent, radio news broadcaster, television commentator, columnist and author — Sevareid was all of these things in a career reaching back to the beginning of the Thirties when he took his first reporting job, at age 18, in daily journalism. Honors have been heaped upon him in his long CBS career, which is now drawing to a close. He turns 65 on Saturday, Nov. 26, and expects to make his last regular broadcast on the CBS Evening News on or before Nov. 30.

The older Sevareid is known best to millions for the philosophic content of his news analyses and interviews. But Sevareid is also remembered, especially by those whose memories stretch back to World War II, for his reporting skills. Ahead of other newsmen, he reported France was ready to surrender to the invading Nazi armies. With Edward R. Murrow he reported the London blitz, and later in the war parachuted from a crippled plane into the Burma jungles.

Alexander Kendrick writes in his book about Murrow, titled Prime Time: "Sevareid, a young and sensitive North Dakotan, had come to Murrow's attention through his work in the Paris Herald, and had been hired away from the clutches of Hugh Baillie, the president of United Press, who also wanted him as the war drew near. Sevareid, as with so many others chosen by Murrow, failed miserably in his 'voice test' to New York, but reporting ability and insight prevailed

PARK UNNAMED, READER SAYS

Editor,

In Monday's Herald-Palladium (Nov. 21) a photo caption about the Shoreline Garden Club referred to the park on the site of the Milton Junior High as the "Milton Park." Their proceeds from "Christmas At Home" project will benefit the park in St. Joseph.

I would like to draw attention to the fact that the park is not officially named. Our committee has been working to name the park the Patrick Ryan Park and have many signatures and many petitions to this effect and have received no notice from the City Commission that any name has been decided. Until then, the park has no name and should be referred to as the city park on the site of the Milton Junior High or the site of the early St. Joseph High School.

Editor,

It is indeed heartening to see the effort being made by the hope for the Dunes citizens in their battle to save the sand hills. We are happy to see that courage still runs red in the veins of Americans. There is real meaning these days behind the words of My Country, "This of Thee, especially the line, "I love thy rocks and rills, thy woods and templed hills, my heart with rapture thrills." No longer just another line in a song, but suddenly poignant with meaning. It expresses exactly what all of us feel as we ride to town and gaze out toward the lake and see these magnificent wooded hills, which so many of our children and grandchildren enjoy. Carter Bows
To FDR Legacy

WASHINGTON — A half-forgotten promise from another era, that every American shall have a right to a job, is haunting the presidency of Jimmy Carter.

It is an unwelcome legacy, this vow which Franklin D. Roosevelt made in 1944, and Carter has done his best to renounce it. But he is a Democrat, and he cannot escape his political heritage.

Reluctantly and with obvious misgivings, Carter has finally embraced the legislative embodiment of the old FDR pledge — the Humphrey-Hawkins full employment bill.

In its latest form, the measure is a mere shadow of its former self, little more than a declaration that the government will use "all practicable means" to reduce unemployment to 4 percent within the next five years.

As the price of the President's support, Carter's economic and political advisers forced the bill's sponsors to eliminate all the mechanisms for achieving this goal, leaving — as the New York Times put it — "a mandate without a method."

Yet even as a purely hortatory measure, the Humphrey-Hawkins bill remains a red flag to the business community and to the millions of other Americans who fear a determined government assault on unemployment would touch off a new round of inflation.

So why did Carter succumb? Why did he commit himself to a battle that is bound to sap time and energy from other programs he personally considers more important?

The answer is that he had no choice, politically speaking.

If the economy had picked up steam at the rate administration economists originally projected for this year, Carter might have safely ignored pressures from blacks, labor and other liberals for the Humphrey-Hawkins enforcement.

But it didn't. After dropping about a point, unemployment has remained stuck around 7 percent for months on end. Worse still, the jobless rate for blacks is twice that level, a post-war high, and a disastrous 40 percent for black teenagers.

No Democratic president could even tacitly accept such bleak statistics, and especially not Carter — a white Southerner who claims a special sensitivity towards the plight of black Americans.

Blacks, union members and the poor of all races gave Carter overwhelming support in last year's election. He owes them, and he will need them again in 1980.

However misguided their enthusiasm, these groups are the very ones which have lobbied Carter persistently all year for a commitment to support Humphrey-Hawkins. His failure to do so before now was the single biggest reason why prominent blacks like Vernon Jordan of the Urban League were becoming increasingly vocal in their criticisms of the President.

To those who have suffered most during the hard times of the past few years, the Humphrey-Hawkins bill carries heavy symbolic freight.

They believe that once Congress enacts a law acknowledging the government's moral responsibility to guarantee every American a job at a fair wage, the mechanics can be attacked later on a piecemeal basis.

Carter has never really comprehended the emotional component of the Humphrey-Hawkins crusade. He is a pragmatist who believes, as he said in another context, that "life is unfair" and the government can't do everything.

But he is also a politician, and a Democrat. Whether he shares the old Roosevelt vision or not, he recognizes its force. And reluctantly or otherwise, he has bowed before it.

Hunter Invasion
Perils Life, Limb

Before I moved to northern New England, I thought hunting had something to do with Abercrombie and Fitch, Ernest Hemingway and Colonel Cantwell in his Italian duck blind, the "Green Hills of Africa" and "The Short Happy Life of Francis Macomber." That was before I moved to northern New England.

Hunting in New Hampshire and Vermont doesn't have anything to do with Abercrombie's baby.

Oh, yes, there really are some decent hunters. There are some local people who depend upon shooting an annual deer for meat, and that sort of person usually knows what he is doing.

But the vast horde of hunters are something else again. Some of them, the local ones, drive around in pick-up trucks with gun and several six-packs. The more energetic ones will actually climb out of the trunk to get a deer — a very difficult and sporting feat indeed when you are using a telescopic sight.

Another mob of hunters arrives up here from Boston, New York and other urban centers, and most of them seem to regard hunting as an excuse to get away from the wife and get smashed on whiskey. They either don't know or don't care about the rules. They will lurk deer at night with a flashlight — completely illegal. They trespass with impunity. They will shoot anything that moves. Two years ago a friend of mine in the State Police stopped a hunter heading home with a cow on the hood of his car. He evidently could not distinguish a cow from a deer.

Horses have been shot. A professor friend of mine had his dog blasted right off the front porch of his house. Last week, a former high official of the FBI was shot dead in the woods.

Myself, I would rather fight at Arnhem, at Verdun, than hunt up here.

Everyone loves the hunters so much. A neighbor of mine described to me one of the most deafening moments of his life. He looked out of his living room window, and in there were two parties of hunters moving toward each other up the opposite sides of a hill. It seemed too good to believe! They were going to reach the top of the hill simultaneously! Curses. One hunter fired his gun, apparently by accident, and no "disaster" occurred.

This incident could have been the greatest thing since the two snowmobilers crashed head on and blew up. The greatest thing since that Italian rock singer in Spain stepped in a puddle of beer and electrocuted himself in his electric guitar. Ah, yes, there is a God after all.

Oh, do I love hunters. Last night I found my pet cat in an iron leg trap, illegally placed. The cat will recover with a ruined leg and I am going to prosecute the owner of that trap right up to his ears.

Do not misunderstand me. I am not against guns. I am definitely not for gun control. I need my guns in case some hunters get too close to the house.

NAACP Seeks To 'Involve' SJ Schools

Counsel Tells Ultimate Goal Of Federal Suit

By LARRY MACINTYRE

Staff Writer

NAACP attorney Thomas Atkins is predicting that the St. Joseph area "will have its day in court" even though the St. Joseph School Board is not a defendant in the Benton Harbor Schools desegregation trial.

Atkins also said in a recent interview that he is aiming to have a court-ordered remedy for segregation put into effect in the Benton Harbor School District at the start of the 1978-79 school year.

Imposition of a remedy became inevitable in August when Judge Noel Fox ruled after phase one of the trial that the Benton Harbor School Board was guilty of creating and perpetuating unconstitutional racial segregation.

The extent and breadth of a remedy will be determined after phase two of the trial is completed. Phase two is now in a two-week recess.

Ten added defendants, including several state officials and agencies and the neighboring School Districts of Eau Claire and Coloma, are being tried in phase two for their alleged roles in contributing to the unconstitutional segregation.

Those found guilty of involvement will become parties to the remedy plan which must be considered in a separate hearing before Judge Fox.

The NAACP is seeking a remedy such as cross-district busing or revision of present school district boundary lines.

"We want to see the school district in Benton Harbor unsegregated," Atkins said. "We want everybody that was involved in segregating it." He said he specifically wants the predominantly white St. Joseph area involved.

Atkins, who lives in Boston, is representing plaintiffs in the desegregation case which was filed by the NAACP on behalf of parents and children in the predominantly black Benton Harbor School District.

Although the St. Joseph School District is not a defendant, much documentary evidence and testimony presented by Atkins appears to be aimed at involving the St. Joseph area in a desegregation plan.

Federal courts have generally held that a school district must be found guilty of contributing to unconstitutional segregation before it can be brought into a remedy. The St. Joseph District could not be found guilty unless it were brought in as a defendant in the case.

Atkins, a graduate of Harvard Law School, appears to be taking a different path in an attempt to involve the St. Joseph area.

He is alleging that policies pursued by state officials, the Berrien County Intermediate School Board, and the St. Joseph City Commission had the foreseeable effect of "rigidly segregating" blacks in Benton Harbor while excluding them from surrounding, predominantly white areas including St. Joseph.

In a brief filed with the court, Atkins charged the St. Joseph City Commission has taken several actions specifically aimed at excluding low-income and black families from living in the city. Those actions include revising zoning laws, refusing to allow construction of apartments for low-income people, and halting the conversion of single-family houses into two-family apartments.

Atkins said the governor was named a party to the suit because he allegedly failed to take action to prevent real estate brokers from practicing "racial steering" and state banks from practicing "redlining."

"The governor made it possible for St. Joseph and Benton Harbor banks to deny money to blacks who wanted to move into white areas," Atkins said. "That's the bottom line."

He said the state Board of Education's role in the case is "massive."

In a brief filed with the court, Atkins claimed that because school district boundaries are created by the state and are unrelated to any other governmental units, there is no compelling reason why the state Board of Education cannot change them to reduce segregation.

"The present Benton Harbor School District boundaries have no compelling state interest save the intensification of the segregation found to exist in the schools within Berrien County," he wrote.

He said that because the state Board of Education has not used its legal powers to correct segregation in the Benton Harbor School District, plaintiffs are asking the federal courts to intervene.

He claimed these powers include the right to revise school boundaries, the right to order cross-district busing where needed, and the right to withhold state aid for non-compliance.

Assistant attorneys general representing state officials in the case are denying the state board has those powers.

Atkins said he will allege that the added defendants — in conjunction with the Benton Harbor School Board — are part of a "continuing conspiracy to racially isolate the Benton Harbor District."

Blacks made up 37 percent of the students in the Benton Harbor District when it was created in 1965. They now make up about 75 percent of the district's 10,350 students.

Attorneys for the added defendants say they will vigorously attack the conspiracy allegation when they present their side of the case.

The added defendants are the governor, the attorney general, the state superintendent of public instruction, the state Board of Education, the state Boundary Commission, the Coloma and Eau Claire School Districts, Concerned Parents of Exum School, and Concerned Parents and Taxpayers of Solus.

The Benton Harbor School Board was tried in June and was found guilty of committing acts of de jure segregation.

The term de jure segregation, as federal courts use it, means segregation resulting from the official acts of governmental bodies or officials. Failure to take affirmative action to prevent foreseeable segregation is considered an act of de jure segregation.

Atkins, a veteran of several school desegregation trials throughout the nation, said he thinks Fox is the most knowledgeable federal judge on desegregation issues he has encountered outside of the South.

Atkins is presently counsel for the NAACP in school desegregation trials in Cleveland and Youngstown, Ohio. He said he is working in the preliminary stages of several other suits.

Before he was retained by the NAACP in 1975, Atkins served in the cabinet of former Massachusetts Gov. Francis Sargent. He also served two terms on the Boston City Council and was an unsuccessful candidate for mayor. Atkins was born and reared in Elkhart, Ind.

Narc Squad Grabs Three Men In BH

By NICK SMITH

Berrien Metro Narcotics Squad officers arrested three men and seized suspected hashish valued at $270 in "a buy and bust type deal" noon Friday in Benton Harbor, according to Thomas Exum, squad commander.

Arrested on charges of delivery of hashish were Leroy J. Londowski, 20, of McKinley Street, Coloma; and John L. Harvey, 22, of Chicago. Exum said John Harvey's brother, Marvin R. Harvey Jr., 21, also of Chicago, was charged with possession of hashish.

Exum said Londowski, after being approached by an undercover agent, allegedly set up a meeting among himself, the Harveys and the agent. The arrests were made in a parking lot at the corner of Sixth and Main streets, said Exum. Officers seized 43.4 grams of suspected hashish.

The three were jailed after their arraignments by Berrien District Judge John T. Hammond Friday afternoon. Londowski and John Harvey demanded examinations on delivery charges. Their bonds were set at $10,000. Marvin Harvey pleaded innocent to a charge of possession of hashish. His bond was set at $5,000.

BH Party Scheduled For 70,001 Funds

Youths from the Berrien County 70,001 Program will sponsor a fund raising skating party Monday, Nov. 28, from 8-10:30 at G&W skating rink, 453 Highland Ave., Benton Harbor. The 70,001 program offers pre-employment training for high school drop-outs between the ages of 16 and 22, and is administered through CETA funding.

Complain Details Not Forthcoming

A detailed statement outlining the Benton Harbor School Board's position on all contract items has not been issued as promised, according to Mrs. Camilla Hunt, president of the Benton Harbor teachers' union.

Mrs. Hunt said instead she received a brief letter Friday evening from attorney Darrell Jacobs, Kalamazoo, school board labor counsel, saying the school board was unable to accept the union's proposal for a contract settlement offered earlier in the week.

The letter, according to Mrs. Hunt, ended by saying "Therefore it appears that unresolved issues will have to be presented to the factfinder" on Dec. 6 and 7 at the fact-finding hearing.

Copies of the letter were also sent to Edward Bentley, school board president, and Dean Sanders, acting school superintendent, according to Mrs. Hunt.

Warren Andrews, group director of personnel and labor relations for Benton Harbor Area Schools, had said, following the union's request that negotiations continue, that a statement would be issued to the teachers outlining the board's position on each contract issue.

Mrs. Hunt said she would have to meet with the association's directors concerning what action the union might take.

She had no comment at this time concerning a possible teacher strike. Benton Harbor teachers have been working without a new contract since classes started in the fall.

Right Season To Spread Joy

Sunday marks the beginning of the Advent season, Advent is the time to prepare for Christmas, which is what friends of the St. Joseph Area Good Fellow fund are doing — preparing to make it a happier Christmas for everyone.

The fund makes Christmas a more joyful time, not only for those who are recipients, but also for those who contribute.

We have many people who are happier today because of their gifts to the fund.

Among them are Jennifer and John Keil Wilson, former residents of the area. Even though they're now residing in Indiana, they haven't forgotten what a terrific job the Good Fellows are doing and remembered the fund with a $10 gift.

Again, we are happy to figure in the hundreds, thanks to a group of Lake Michigan Beach residents. A $100 check from the Lake Michigan Beach Property Owners Association, Inc., gives the fund a very needed boost.

The $110 brought in today leaves the total at $410. We'll have to hasten the pace if we're to going to reach our goal of $5,000.

PRESERVES HISTORY: St. Joseph artist Al Farmer, well known in the area for his preservation of local "nostalgia," painted this watercolor of "Shadowland" from across the channel leading to St. Joseph harbor. Farmer, whose original watercolors appear in many private collections, denotes this painting as memorabilia of the big band era.

Famed Watercolors Now On Stationery

By ARLYS DERRICK
Women's Editor

Al Farmer, St. Joseph artist who is well known for his watercolor scenes of Twin Cities "nostalgia," has reproduced the scenes on stationery which is now available in local stores.

Sunday, Nov. 27, Farmer will be at Hall of Cards & Bunks, Fairplain Plaza, to display some of his original watercolors and autograph a limited edition of 8 X 10 full color reproductions of his latest watercolor, "Shadowland," which will be presented free to the first 25 persons to purchase the stationery.

Each packet of stationery which sells for $3.75 includes eight cards and envelopes and each includes two each of four separate scenes.

The stationery is also available at the St. Joseph Hall of Cards & Bunks and at the St. Joseph Art Center, 600 State Street, St. Joseph.

Among scenes depicted on the stationery are the old Napier bridge, the old St. Joseph handshell, and the old Berrien County courthouse in St. Joseph, all of which have been replaced by modern structures.

Also included is the old Benton Harbor library. The original watercolor was framed with part of the building's 60-year-old stair-banister and is currently hung in the office of the new library.

Farmer's courthouse painting was reproduced in bronze and appears on the plaque at the site of old building, now a parking area for the new courthouse.

Both the St. Joseph handshell and the old Napier bridge, as well as many street and water scenes familiar to area residents, are in private collections, but have been reproduced on the note-size stationery. Included are some local churches, the St. Joseph River Yacht Club, Whitecomb Towers, the skyline from the pier, and the St. Joseph lighthouse.

Farmer, who came to the twin cities area in 1961 as art director at Bauhoff Studios in St. Joseph, says he "became entranced by the area's beauty — especially the charm of some of the very old homes and structures."

He says when he began to sketch street scenes in St. Joseph, he also learned of the area's history from residents whose grandparents had been born in the area.

He says nostalgia overtook him last year as he sketched Shadowland ballroom — last remaining structure on Silver Beach in St. Joseph — "I could almost hear the sounds of all the great bands that played here in the past."

The artist is a native of Los Angeles, Calif., where he was studying at Los Angeles City College during the "big band era." He says, "Those big ballrooms are so much more than landmarks to so many people — they're symbols of an era."

Farmer has won many

awards for his work — ranging from his first award in the National Collegiate Outdoor Advertising contest while still a student in Los Angeles, to his latest recognition, the Kimberly-Clark Graphic Arts Award-of-the-Year for his work on a Chicago Cadillac dealership's special promotion.

He sold caricatures and cartoons to the Honolulu Star Bulletin World War II during his service in Hawaii, operated his own studio in Fort Wayne, Ind., and in 1953 was named advertising art director for the Magnavox Company in Fort Wayne, and in 1957 joined Bauhoff Studios in Chicago, coming to St. Joseph when the company moved to the area in 1961.

Farmer has produced art for such companies as Magnavox, International Harvester, Kirsch Co., Whirlpool Corp., Clark Equipment Co., and Sears, Roebuck & Company.

His paintings in watercolor, acrylic, and pen and ink have received awards in various shows, including the annual Twin Cities Association of American University Women's annual art show.

Winter Season Can Be Hard!

Hey, hey Good Fellows!

Thanksgiving is history and there's enough snow to remind us Christmas approaches. The snow also is a reminder that the winter season can be hard for individuals and families who are not equipped to face it squarely.

The Benton Harbor Good Fellow Fund is a sharing process in which those who have can help a neighbor who has a lesser portion of the world's goods. The sharing is done at Christmas time, because that is a traditional time of gift giving and also because the cold winter season is the time of greatest need.

One newcomer to the list of Good Fellows here was the lone contributor today. But the size of the check was sufficient to stop the Good Fellow ledger-keepers from gnawing nervously on their nails.

It was for $100 even. And it came from the Lake Michigan Beach Property Owners Association, Inc. Love ya. This moved the total received since the 1977 fund was opened Monday to $423.

Growing Bulbs In Water

EAST LANSING — You have probably seen a sweet potato vine growing in a jar of water. But did you know that some flowering bulbs may be grown in water, too?

J. Lee Taylor, professor of horticulture at Michigan State University, says flower plants from bulbs may be grown even in the middle of the winter. The trick is to choose the right bulb and take care of it properly.

The best bulbs for forcing; in-to midwinter bloom are the paper white narcissus. A yellow variety, Grand Soleil d'Or, is also sold for this use.

Put a layer of clean, washed sand or pea gravel in the bottom of a bowl two to three inches deep. Set the bulbs in the sand or gravel so the tops and necks are not covered. Then pour water into the bowl so that it comes almost to the surface of the material.

Place the bowl in a cool place — about 60 degrees F — that is brightly lighted. Check every day and add water as needed to keep the water level near the top of the gravel. Food stored in the bulb will be all the plant needs to grow and flower. Blossoms should appear in six to eight weeks.

For a more difficult project, try forcing hyacinth bulbs.

Special hyacinth glasses can be used for forcing. They are not necessary, however. An ordinary paper or plastic cup and an empty jar may be substituted.

Cut a hole in the bottom of the cup so the bulb will sit in the bottom without falling through. Fill the jar with water and set the cup with the bulb in the top of the jar. The water level in the jar should be just below the roots of the bulb.

Hyacinths are cold-temperate bulbs. They need a cold treatment before they will bloom. Hyacinth bulbs planted outdoors get their cold treatment in the ground. Cold-treat bulbs for forcing indoors by placing the bulb and glass in a cool, dark place — about 48 degrees F — for 10-12 weeks.

Check the jars regularly and add water as necessary. When the bulb sprout is two inches long, or when the flower bud may be seen or felt, move the jar into a brightly lighted spot. It will bloom in one to three weeks.

Bulbs that have been forced once should not be forced again. Narcissus should be thrown away after they have flowered. Hyacinths may be planted outdoors, but they will probably not do well.

PREPARE FOR CHRISTMAS Advent Begins Sunday

The Advent Season begins Sunday, Nov. 27.

An Advent Wreath is often used in churches and in homes and when the candles are lighted and the congregation and families participate, it becomes a reminder to prepare hearts and minds for the real meaning of Christmas.

Probably the Advent Wreath had its origin among the sun worshippers in the country which is now called Germany. To appease the sun god during the dark days of winter they took a wheel from a cart, sacrificing its use for a time while they thought of the blessings of light and life and begged the sun god to return to them.

Later, Christians appropriated the idea of using the wheel in worship. They added a candle for each Sunday in Advent, and sometimes, a candle for the center of the wheel. They took the wheel or circle or wreath to symbolize God's gift of life and growth and life to come.

The Advent Wreath to be used at Trinity Lutheran church, 609 Court St., St. Joseph, has three violet candles, a rose candle and the white nativity candle. The first week a violet candle is lighted, followed the second week by two violet candles lighted, and the third week, two violet candles and the rose candles are lighted and the fourth week all three violet candles and the rose candle are lighted. The nativity candle is lighted Christmas Eve.

In some churches who use the three violet candles and the rose candle, they are replaced with four white candles Christmas Eve representing the joy of Christmas and the sinless Jesus. Red ribbons signifying Jesus' blood shed on the cross replaces the purple ribbons.

In some versions four red candles in the colors of the Christian church form the wreath while in other versions there are three red candles and one white.

Lighting the first candle symbolizes the darkness before the coming of Christ and the increasing circle of light as each candle is lighted represents the vanquishing of darkness as the Christ is coming. On Christmas the whole wreath is ablaze with light as the Christ candle (the center white one in one version) is lighted or with the lighting of the four white candles in the other version.

Centennial Celebration Sunday

Gobles Church

GOBLES — The congregation of Bethany Presbyterian church, Gobles, will observe the 100th anniversary of the church Sunday, Nov. 27.

A special centennial celebration is planned at 3 p.m.

Dr. John Chandler, minister-at-large for the Presbyterian church of Kalamazoo, and Elder J. H. H. of Three Rivers, Moderator, will participate. During the service, the debt retirement on the church's manse will be observed.

The basic structure of the church dates from 1877 when the Gobles brothers, Hiram, Warren, John and James and J.L. Clement, joined together as a building committee to build a church on what is now the corner of West Exchange and Glover streets.

The congregation was called Free-Will Baptist Church and the first pastor was a Rev. Kaiser.

The town of Gobles takes its name from the Gobles brothers. The town was originally known as Gobleville and the name was changed to Gobles in 1922.

The congregation was changed to a Community church in 1927 and in 1955 became the Bethany Presbyterian church. The Rev. Paul Armstrong is the pastor.

According to the Rev. Armstrong, many years ago, a tin ceiling was installed in the church and handpainted in many different colors.

The original windows in the church were decorative leaded glass and they were replaced in 1945 with Florentine glass. Students from Gobles High School art class painted pictures from the Bible on the windows.

The church has been remodeled and additions constructed over the years. A major restoration project of the sanctuary was completed in 1961.

CHURCH TODAY: Bethany Presbyterian Church, Gobles, has undergone many changes since its construction 100 years ago. Front has been changed at least twice and additions built. Towers formerly held steeples which were removed more than 40 years ago.

THE NEW TESTAMENT No. 27. The Two Blind Men

When Jesus and his disciples went out of the city of Jericho, a huge crowd followed behind them. Two blind men were seated beside the road. When the blind men heard that Jesus was coming that way, they began shouting for Jesus to have mercy upon them.

"And the multitude rebuked them, because they should hold their peace; but they cried the more, saying, Have mercy on us, O Lord, the son of David. And Jesus stood still, and called them, and said, What will ye that I shall do unto you?" (Matthew 20:31-32)

"They say unto him, Lord, that our eyes may be opened. So Jesus had compassion on them, and touched their eyes; and immediately their eyes received sight, and they followed him." (Matthew 20:33-34)

Annual Clothing Drive

Twenty-one Catholic churches in the Diocese of Kalamazoo are involved in the annual Thanksgiving clothing drive which ends Sunday, Nov. 27.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Too Late To Change Son?

Dear Ann Landers: I have good reason to believe that my son, age 20, does not have normal sex drives. Worse yet, I'm afraid I am to blame.

His father died two years ago, after nearly ten years of lying around in an alcoholic stupor. Because I was lonely my son and I developed a closer-than-most relationship. I worked hard at trying to be both father and mother.

The questions: What do I do now? But out of his life as completely as possible and pray he can work out his own salvation? Would it help him to understand that I damaged him or would it hurt him even more? Should I shut my eyes and hope I am wrong? Sign me — Tom Lee.

Dear Mother: I'm trying to read between the lines and getting nowhere. Do you suspect your son is a homosexual—or is he just mother-hung?

If it's the first, he took turn before he was five years of age. (That's when gender-identity is usually established.) Therapy rarely changes people. If he's too much of a mama's boy — don't apologize. Remember Henry Ford's motto — "Never complain, never explain." Do your best to cut the umbilical cord and stop feeling guilty. It won't help him and it certainly won't do anything for you.

Change Now

Dear Ann: When I was 16 I got pregnant. The baby's father stuck by me but I decided not to marry him. When Lisa was born I gave her my last name.

I married Lisa's father a year later but I didn't change her last name when I changed mine. I am not ashamed of what I did and I don't want Lisa to be ashamed of being born of an unmarried mother. In fact, I want her to be proud of my courage.

If she wants to take her father's name later she can do it. Am I thinking straight? —

Proud To Be Me

Dear You: Your thinking isn't as straight as you think it is. My advice is to change Lisa's name NOW. Why complicate your daughter's life by going out of your way to advertise the fact that she was born out of wedlock? You may not realize it but that is what you are doing.

On-Sided Deal

Dear Ann Landers: We are two senior citizens who live in the same apartment building. We have become very good friends but have no intention of getting married. I do a lot for him — like shopping and driving him where he wants to go. Sometimes I do his laundry.

He enjoys playing cards and so do I. When I make a mistake he cusses me out and calls me a dumbbell. Otherwise, he is kind and considerate. He says he loves me and I believe him. In spite of his few faults I like the old fool.

Once in a while he treats me to a restaurant dinner or an ice cream cone when we go for a walk. But something is bothering me. When his relatives come to visit and they all go to a restaurant for dinner he never invites me along. Yes, they know we are close friends. Am I crazy? I stick with him? — Augusta, Ga.

Dear Ga.: It sounds as if you're doing a lot more for your friend than he's doing for you. Have a frank talk and spell it out. In the meantime, if you have an opportunity to take a walk and get an ice cream cone with another gentleman — do it.

Parents, what should you do if your teenager is having sexual relations? Ann Landers' new booklet, "High School Sex and How to Deal With It — A Guide for Teens and Their Parents," gives no-nonsense advice on how to handle this delicate situation. For each booklet, send 50 cents in coin plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Celebrate Birthdays

BERRIEN CENTER — Mrs. Clara Woodworth, a resident in the extended care facility at Berrien General Hospital, Berrien Center, celebrated her 92nd birthday Nov. 22.

Although she has lived at the facility for three years, and needs a walking aid, Mrs. Woodworth continues an active life that includes attending church, doing needlework, reading, visiting relatives, and writing poetry.

Her writing has earned her the unofficial title of "resident poet" at the hospital. She has prepared a poem for her son and daughter-in-law's 50th wedding anniversary, which was celebrated Nov. 26, and can usually be counted on to produce a few verses for special occasions. "I will take any excuse to write a poem," she said.

Mrs. Woodworth also enjoys public speaking, particularly the recitation of humorous readings. "In my younger days I always said I would rather speak than eat," she laughed. It was a rare school or community program in her home town of Bainbridge that did not have her name included.

Last spring she recited "The Inventor's Wife" at the Spring Heritage Festival on the old courthouse grounds in Berrien Springs. "I praise the Lord for a good memory," she said.

In 1975, Mrs. Woodworth put that good memory to the test and celebrated her 90th birthday by earning her high school equivalency diploma, 64 years after leaving the ninth grade at the old School.

Mrs. Woodworth often spends the weekend with one of her children, and regularly attends the Berrien Springs Seventh-day Adventist church, where she was baptized Nov. 19.

Mrs. Woodworth was born Nov. 22, 1885, in Bainbridge, the daughter of William and Phoebe Schaas. When she was 16 years old she went to Chicago to visit an aunt, and saw her first telephone and first automobile.

"It was so exciting," she recalled. "Two or three of us would listen at the earpiece of the phone at one time. And one day when we were downtown, someone shouted that an automobile was coming. We all ran to the window to watch it."

She married Will E. Yund in July, 1904. The couple farmed at Bainbridge for 50 years, until Mr. Yund's ill health forced them to move to Watervliet. He died there in 1953 at the age of 76, and two years later his widow married Ernest F. Woodworth, who died in 1958.

Mrs. Woodworth has five children: Kenneth, Benton Harbor; Mrs. Claude (Florine) Rowe, Watervliet; Clifford, Hartford; Glenn, California, and Mrs. Lowell (Claribel) Peters, Florida.

She has nine grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren. She also has five stepchildren, 11 step-grandchildren, and 17 step-great-grandchildren.

To anyone wanting a long, full life, Mrs. Woodworth has this advice: "Keep busy all the time. Keep hands and mind active."

CLARA WOODWORTH

SAWYER — Harry Spaulding, Hildebrandt Road, Sawyer, was honored at a party Nov. 21 at Christian United Church of Christ, Sawyer, in celebration of his 88th birthday.

Spaulding was born Nov. 25, 1879, in Sawyer, where he has resided all of his life.

He was married for 73 years to the former Edith Brant who died last April.

Prior to retiring, Spaulding was a contractor and painter.

He has three children, Mrs. Phil (Vera) Sexton of Benton Harbor, Mrs. Ray (Ruth) Valerius of California and Elton Spaulding of Lansing; six grandchildren, and 16 great-grandchildren.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please give the details on what to do when a person faints.

I saw a person faint once, and we didn't know what to do. Later, I read in a first-aid book what to do.

I fainted once, and later I learned that they did the wrong thing. They made me walk — with great effort — and sat me in a chair. Eventually, they carried me downstairs to a rug. Several stood around me — an air — before the rescue squad and ambulance came. Fortunately, I have a strong heart, so I survived.

DEAR READER — Everyone should know what to do when a person suddenly loses consciousness or faints.

It's important to let the person lie flat on the floor or some other flat surface.

Next, check to find out if the air way is open — that there is nothing in the throat to prevent breathing. That is step A.

Next, check to see if the patient is breathing — step B.

Next, check to see if the circulation is present — the heart beat. Called step C. These are the ABC's of what you should do.

To give you more detailed information, I am sending you "The Health Letter" number 74, "Save A Life: Heart and Lung Arrest. It provides you the basic steps to follow when a person is unconscious and you must act to save a life. Readers who want to learn about these important life-saving steps can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for this issue to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Since so many people have learned how to do this in Seattle, Wash., the number of deaths from dropping over with a heart attack on the streets or in the homes has drastically fallen. I would urge my readers not only to learn about the method, but to call their nearest American Heart Association chapter and find out about any courses that may be available to gain experience in life-saving techniques.

A simple faint is often caused by insufficient blood flow to the brain. This can be caused from a response to bad news, standing too long in parade formation on a hot day, because of a fever, too much alcohol, or any number of factors. Usually, when the person is allowed to lie flat, the blood flow to the brain will improve immediately and the patient recovers. Never try to keep the person upright. That will only prevent a return of normal circulation to the brain and prolong the faint, or even cause more serious problems. If the person is put on a hard, flat surface and happens to have something more serious such as no discernible heart beat, you are in a position to provide heart compression or respiratory support or both, if needed.

You can improve the return of blood to the brain by propping the person's feet up above the chest level as they are lying flat. If the person is pale, cold and clammy, you may want to use a blanket, but if the person is hot and flushed without sweating, it may be a heat stroke if conditions indicate that is possible. In that case, you need to cool the victim. A little common sense will usually get you through the situation.

With all finesses working for him South will take 12 tricks. With all finesses going against him, South must take care or he won't even make nine. Still there is a sure-fire winning play after West opens the queen of clubs.

South must win in dummy and take an immediate heart finesse. It loses, but West has no lead that can worry South. In fact a spade or club lead will give him 10 tricks, but West leads a heart right back.

Now South is ready to attack diamonds. This play is correct with 10 cards in the suit since it keeps South from losing a trick if West holds all three diamonds.

This finesse loses and if East shoots back a club an alert South should still scrape up the overtrick. He simply cashes all the red cards and watches diamonds. If West chucks two clubs and a heart, South can throw him in with the jack of clubs and make him lead from the king of spades.

If West guards his king of spades, South should refuse the spade finesse. It is too dangerous. He will then pluck the king and make the over-trick that way.

ASK THE GOODBYES

An Illinois reader wants to know what he should lead with:

♠ A ♥ A K x x ♦ Q J 10 x ♣ K Q 10 x

The bidding has gone one spade-double-pass-pass-pass. He should open that small trump. His partner has trumped. He has everything else. He should try to get trump drawn if possible.

Nov. 28, 1977

Business opportunities may be sprung on you rather suddenly and through unexpected channels this coming year. Don't gauge the merits of anything by the person who presents it. Examine it for yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Taking time to examine the teeth of a gift horse today may hurt your own interests. The donor will think you're ungrateful and withdraw the offer. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll have faith in your decision-making ability today until someone questions it. Then you'll probably change your mind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Procedures that have failed you repeatedly when attempting to reach your goals should be discarded today. You'll lose nothing by innovating.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be friendly and open with your chums today, but don't pry into their affairs. You may learn something you'd rather not know.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A money-making opportunity calling for a fast decision is likely to present itself today. If you dawdle too long, it could slip away.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you're promoting something today, don't waste time trying to sell a particular person. Move on if you sense reluctance. Return another time.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You could score well financially today through programs that are clever but conventional. Blue-sky schemes will net you only grief.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Opening the door to new opportunities is easy for you today. Your problem lies in not knowing how to handle yourself once you're inside.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may have a hunch today that's seemingly totally illogical. Don't dismiss it. There may be some worthwhile elements in it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you're in a friendly mood, but a bit too impulsive. Someone could put the bite on you and you'll agree before weighing the request.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be willing to share equally today with those who have helped you to achieve good fortune rather than conniving to get more for yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Keep your actions out in the open today. The moment you operate behind closed doors, people will become suspicious.

Nov. 27, 1977

A contact of long standing, more experienced than you are, may show you how to make a loaf of bread from crumbs this coming year. Both will eventually profit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't hesitate to prime the pump today concerning something potentially profitable. You must spend money to make money. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each sign and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The details of an agreement could make you a shade near-sighted today. Once you grasp the whole picture, you can bargain effectively.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Social activities normally have a great appeal for you. Today, however, you can set them aside if they interfere with something where you can turn a buck.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Make light of the rat race many people find themselves in and you'll be ahead of the game. Concentrate on what you think really counts.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you want to wear the laurel wreath today, keep your own counsel. It's not what people say about you, but what you know you are.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Little people with little causes won't excite you today, but those who thunder in stentorian voices will. You're right not to listen to small echoes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) When it comes down to the nitty gritty today, forget about advice from the sidelines. Follow the dictates of your conscience.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The best thing that can happen to you today is for someone to tell you it can't be done. Then you'll prove them wrong.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Petty undertakings will chill you today. Just let someone come up with a grandiose scheme that has half a chance to make it and you'll be flying.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Ineffective noises made by your detractors won't disturb you today. You know your true friends will turn a deaf ear to them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be philosophical today rather than purely logical. Some things in life, which seem to forebode nothing but ill, bring good fortune before they run their course.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A friend's mistake may cost you time or money today, but don't lose any sleep over it. The value of the association is greater than your slight misfortune.

Teen Contraceptive Ruling To Be Appealed

ME? — Leslie Griffiths, 17, of Anchorage, Alaska, shows her elation after being named Miss Teenage America 1978. Miss Griffiths was chosen from eight semi-finalists in the 17th Annual National Finals in Dallas, Texas, Friday night. First runner-up is Ramona Ender, daughter of a serviceman stationed in Ansbach, Germany. (AP Laserphoto)

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A federal appeals court will be asked to overturn a federal judge's ruling that teenagers can't be given contraceptives without their parents' knowledge.

The Ingham County Board of Health said Friday it will appeal the decision by U.S. District Judge Noel Fox of Grand Rapids. Fox reaffirmed his decision Wednesday after being directed by the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to take another look at his March decision.

Fox issued an injunction eight months ago against the Ingham County Family Planning Clinic, blocking the distribution of contraceptives to minors unless parents were notified. The county appealed, and the higher court asked Fox to reexamine his opinion.

Mary Kay Wickens, chairwoman of the Ingham County Board of Health, said Friday the latest decision by Fox will be appealed again to the Cincinnati court. Fox did not continue the injunction.

"We believe that minors have a constitutionally protected privacy right to contraceptive services," Ms. Wickens said.

The health board's staff encourages youngsters to discuss their concerns about contraceptives with their parents, Ms. Wickens said.

The board told the clinic after

Fox's ruling to continue providing contraceptive information and services to minors without requiring parental consent or notification.

"We respect the family institution, and where parents and teenagers have the ability to communicate openly and honestly about sexual activity and contraceptive use, the parent should be the primary source of advice and information," Ms. Wickens said.

"However, the chilling effect of an arbitrary parental notification ... and the serious health and social consequences of the teen-age pregnancy epidemic compel our decision to continue ... providing individual and confidential services to anyone requesting them," she added.

Opponents of Fox's ruling say the contraceptive services are needed on a private basis because of increases in pregnancies and abortions, the growing sexual activity of teens and the maternal death risk.

Fox, chief judge of the Western District of Michigan, ruled in March that parents have a constitutionally guaranteed right to be told what their sexually permissive children are up to.

Coal Talks Break Down; Strike Is Likely Dec. 6

By ROBERT A. DORKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A strike in the nation's coal fields appears certain Dec. 6 following a break-off in contract negotiations with no plans to resume bargaining.

"It is now rather certain there is going to be a work stoppage," United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller said Friday as he left the negotiations in a downtown hotel. He has predicted "a long and bitter strike."

Federal mediators were in touch with union and industry officials and are expected to try to get them back to the bargaining table next week.

But both sides in the dispute are now reconciled to a strike even though the deadline is still more than a week away. It would take 10 days just for the union to get a contract ratified by the rank-and-file, and there is little hope of extending the present agreement, which expires at 12:01 a.m. Dec. 6.

A strike by the union's 130,000 miners, who produce about half the nation's coal, has been widely anticipated by utilities and other major coal users. They have accumulated large stockpiles, so a walkout isn't expected to cause serious problems for the economy unless it lasts until spring.

However, the heavy coal producing states of Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Kentucky can be expected to feel the effects sooner as the mines shut down, resulting in millions of dollars in lost wages. Two major coal-hauling railroads already have announced layoffs.

Officials of both the UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, the industry's bargaining arm, accused each other of breaking off the negotiations.

Miller said the association refused to bargain in good faith on key economic issues. The association denied it and accused Miller of planning to break off talks even before the meeting started.

The negotiators had returned from a Thanksgiving Day recess with an agreement to meet through the weekend, but Friday's session ended abruptly after about two hours.

"The BOA repeatedly threatened the UMW, called it 'weak and divided' and stated the UMW 'was on probation' and 'not the only game in town,'" Miller said in a statement.

An association spokesman did not deny the contract, but noted it has long been the industry's position to "emphasize the importance of a strong union."

Sadat Proposes Cairo Meeting

CAIRO (AP) — President Anwar Sadat today invited all the parties to the Middle East conflict, including Israel, to come to Cairo starting next week to prepare for a peace conference.

The conference in Geneva, he told a cheering session of the Egyptian parliament, should last not years but months.

Also to be invited, Sadat said, were the United States, the Soviet Union and U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim.

"I will give instructions to the foreign minister of Egypt after this speech to contact the United Nations, the two big powers and the parties to the conflict, including Israel, to tell them that Cairo welcomes them as of next Saturday, to prepare for the Geneva conference," Sadat declared.

Preparations for the Geneva conference until now have been in the hands of the United States, which has acted as a go-between in attempts to get Arabs and Israelis to agree to terms for convening the parley.

Sadat's invitation appeared to be an attempt to bypass intermediaries and to keep the momentum generated by his trip to Israel last week from dying away.

In his 80-minute speech, interrupted several times by standing ovations, Sadat did not announce any concrete results on issues of substance stemming from his talks with Israeli leaders. Rather, he said, the biggest result of his trip was the melting of a psychological barrier that had kept the two sides plunged in hate, distrust and suspicion for 30 years.

Only 10 days before he started his trip last Saturday, Sadat recounted, the Israelis became convinced Egypt was about to attack them. But, he said, Egypt was merely responding to Israeli military maneuvers with exercises of its own.

"This is what I mean by psychological barriers," he said.

He and Israel's leaders, he said, had agreed that in the peace conference there would be discussions of matters of substance, and that Israeli security would be negotiated "away from the occupation of Arab land."

This was a reiteration of Sadat's slogan in Jerusalem that the 1973 October war should be the last in the Middle East and that the conflict should be resolved peacefully.

"To every man on this land who has sacrificed himself, to every woman who has given her son for the battle, and to every youth I say this:

"We will not allow any single one of you to be hurt so long as we can make peace. We will destroy the idols of fear and we will be victorious over the enemies of life," Sadat declared. The Egyptian president, wearing his usual horn-rimmed glasses, departed from his text in the second half of his speech and launched an attack on his Arab critics. He also repeatedly accused the Soviet Union of fomenting the split in Arab ranks provoked by his visit to Israel.

Pounding the lectern, clutching his fists to his chest and raising a finger above his head to emphasize his points, Sadat maintained that Arab suspicion that he had sold out to Israel was unfounded.

Sadat declared his decision to go to Israel was reached after careful thought.

Michiganders Watching Speed Better Than Most

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan is not among those states where legislatures are undercutting the national 55 mph speed limit "by rendering penalties virtually meaningless," says a new report to President Carter.

"A trend toward lower penalties has become more evident in the last six months," the report says. It finds that "a substantial portion of motorists" ignore the 55 mph limit imposed in 1974 and that their number is increasing.

In Michigan, the percentage of vehicles traveling above the limit in the first six months of this year was just over half — 59.5, the study concluded. The study ranked Michigan 38th among the 50 states in percentage of vehicles exceeding the 55 mph speed limit for the first six months of the year.

The study says state penalties vary widely: from a fine of up to $500 plus assessment of points in Maryland to a $5 fine and no points in Idaho. In Michigan, penalties range from 50 cents to $5 for each mile over the 55 mph speed limit. The amounts are left up to the discretion of judges. The Michigan Legislature has not changed the penalties.

The report was sent to Carter by Transportation Secretary

Bruck Adams along with a study by Gen. Benjamin Davis Jr., a special assistant to the secretary.

Since 1974, the study says, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Oregon and Tennessee have reduced penalties for violations and, "This approach maintains the official 55 mph speed limit, but in effect nibbles away at the limit."

States must comply with the speed limit or risk losing federal highway aid. Each state must certify each January that it is enforcing the limit.

Last March, Adams sent telegrams to all governors warning that significant lessening of penalties would raise a substantial question of whether that state was enforcing the limit.

"Since that time," the Davis study notes, "the governors of North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah and Texas have vetoed legislation to weaken 55 mph penalties."

The study says the vetoes are encouraging but "the passage of legislation by the respective state houses evidences the current lack of support among many state legislatures."

The study found that the average speed of all vehicles on rural interstate highways was 63 mph in 1973, dropping after the ban went into effect to 57.6 in 1974, but rising to 58 in 1976. On urban interstates, the average speed went from 57 in 1973 to 53.1 in 1974 and to 55 in 1976.

In 1973, 89 percent of all vehicles exceeded 55 mph on rural interstates. That figure dropped to 65 percent in 1974 but rose to 70 percent in 1976. The same trend was found on urban interstates, 58 percent in 1973, down to 35 percent in 1974, up to 57 percent last year. Similar patterns were found in vehicles exceeding 60 mph and 65 mph.

AAA Says U.S. Study Negative

DETROIT (AP) — The Automobile Club of Michigan has its own interpretation of a federal report showing motorists increasingly are defying the 55 mph speed limit.

The auto club issued a statement Friday deploring "the negative interpretation given to a U.S. Department of Transportation study."

The national study says 70 percent of drivers on rural interstate and 57 percent of drivers on urban interstates do exceed the 55 mph speed limit. But the auto club emphasized the portion of the report that says those motorists exceeding the speed limit are doing so by only 1 mph to 3.1 mph.

Average driving speeds have declined 4 mph on urban interstates and about 7 mph on rural interstates, said Arthur Gibson, the auto club's safety and traffic engineering department manager.

"We strongly urge that Michigan's 55 mph speed limit be more stringently enforced, which calls for more Michigan state police patrolling vigorously," said Gibson.

U.S. Bases In Michigan Called Major Polluters

CHICAGO (AP) — Three federal installations in Michigan and 14 others in the Midwest are major polluters, according to the Environmental Protection Agency.

The Michigan facilities are the U.S. Army Missile Plant in Sterling Heights, Seefridge Air National Guard Base in Mount Clemens and K.I. Sawyer Air Force Base at Gwinn near Marquette.

The facilities have 30 days to respond to the citations and compliance orders. If they fail to respond or to submit acceptable compliance schedules in that time, "We'll seek court injunctions, and the facilities will be subject to fines and contempt findings," an EPA spokesman said Friday.

Some of the installations are accused of violating water pollution standards and some of polluting the air.

Two facilities — Chanute Air Force Base at Hamilton, Ill., and the Ford Motor Production Center at Permut, Ohio — are accused of both air and water pollution.

"All these are major violators," the spokesman said.

One of the worst offenders, he said, is Wright-Patterson Air Force Base at Dayton, Ohio. He said the base sends 2,500 tons of soot and other pollutants into the air each year. The legal limit for the base is about 200 tons, the spokesman said.

Wright-Patterson also releases 2,400 tons of sulfur dioxide into the atmosphere each year — 1,400 tons over the limit, he said.

He said the EPA in the past did not go after federal agencies that were guilty of polluting because "some people have thought it was kind of silly for the federal government to be suing itself."

"But this way of thinking appears to be dissipating," George Alexander, regional EPA administrator, said the crackdown is in accordance with a policy announced Oct. 20 by Barbara Blum, deputy administrator of the EPA, and is part of an "all-out effort to facilitate the EPA's program of even-handed and swift enforcement against violating federal facilities."

Other facilities cited by the EPA are:

OHIO — Defense Electronics Supply Agency, Dayton; Defense Construction Supply Center, Columbus; Portsmouth Area Gaseous Diffusion Plant, Piketon; Lewis Research Center, Cleveland; Rickman Air Force Base, Columbus.

Ford Recalls 10,500 Cars

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. is recalling about 10,500 of its 1977 and 1978 model cars to check for possibly defective tilt-steering columns. A Ford spokesman said the cars involved were built between July 26 and August 12. The period encompassed the end of the 1977 model run and the start of 1978 model assemblies. Practically every model of Ford cars was represented in the recall, which included 10,300 cars in the United States, 300 in Canada and eight in export markets. Ford said some of the cars may have been fitted with improper transmission control inserts in the steering column. The condition could result in starting an engine in a drive mode, rather than neutral, Ford said.

Aviatrix Wanted Combat

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — The Navy's first woman pilot says her decision to resign had less to do with being pregnant than it did with having a career limited by being kept out of combat roles.

"I could have taken maternity leave, but there were other factors besides pregnancy that were making me reconsider a Navy career," said Barbara Allen Rainey.

She won her Navy wings in 1974, then qualified to fly jets. But she said she spent the next three years watching her chances of promotion diminish.

So Mrs. Rainey, 29, resigned her lieutenant's commission in California earlier this month and joined her husband, Navy Lt. John Rainey, a flight instructor at Whiting Field near Pensacola. She expects their child in February.

"If all things had been equal, it would have been a much harder decision," she said. "I might have taken leave and gone back on active duty if I had felt the opportunity for career advancement was there."

It isn't likely to be there soon for women pilots, she said.

"Because of the limitations by law — Code 10 Article 60-15 that says women can't serve in combat roles — Navy flying isn't a viable career for women. It is too limited," she said.

Mrs. Rainey, who said she'll try to keep her hand in by flying with a reserve unit, said that while on duty she often found herself watching male pilots in her squadron fly on missions that should have been hers but for her sex.

"Flying the mail to a ship, for instance, meant you had to be assigned to the ship, and a pilot assigned to a ship is a combat role, so I couldn't do it. When I got out I had between 1,100 and 1,200 hours in the air and most of the men who had graduated at the same time I did had 1,500 to 1,600 hours. I was falling behind because of the limitations."

Mrs. Rainey, who usually was assigned to fly passenger-cargo transports during her three years, said it's time the Navy seriously considers the futures of its women pilots.

"The patterns for male pilots to advance as naval officers are established," she said. "But with us, it hasn't really worked out yet."

She said the service's equal opportunity policy is "qualified" and that "qualified equal opportunity just isn't equal — there's no such thing."

FIFTEEN DEAD IN MIDWEST

Storms Threatening Northeast

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Two storms, one of which left 15 persons dead in the Midwest, 10 as a result of heart attacks while shoveling snow, churned closer together today, threatening the Northeast with a major blizzard.
Weather-related incidents claimed nine lives in Wisconsin and three lives each in Michigan and Illinois.
Officials said all nine of the persons who died in storm-related deaths in Wisconsin suffered heart attacks, eight while shoveling snow and the other while putting snow tires on his auto.
Two of the Illinois deaths also were attributed to heart attacks suffered by persons while received 3 to 3 1/4 inches and roads are generally passable.

A major traffic tie-up occurred south of Buchanan when two semis stalled on US-12 forcing police to reroute traffic off US-12 from Red Bud Trail to Chamberlain then across to Bakertown Road. About 35-40 autos then became stalled on Chamberlain.
Lt. Tom McCall, director of the Berrien County Office of Emergency Preparedness, said the 12 inches of snow fell in northern Berrien County during a five-hour period, from around 6:30 to 11:30 p.m.
He said strong gusty winds caused 30-inch drifts in some areas. McCall said most area motorists filled up with stranded motorists and shelters were established at the Stevensville fire station and a Red Cross center at the Saron Lutheran Church, St. Joseph which was later shut down since it was not needed.
The Associated Press reported high winds whipped a powdery snow across much of the state, creating hazardous driving conditions and plunging temperatures toward zero.
A travelers' advisory was up today for northeastern Lower Michigan for blowing and drifting snow. The National Weather Service said visibility had been cut to zero by drifting snow and icing. Gusts were reported up to 35 miles an hour and higher near Lake Huron.
Temperatures continued to fall overnight. The mercury had dropped to 14 at Alpena by early this morning. Friday's low of 16 set a record cold temperature for the date in that city.

Other early morning cold spots around Michigan included Lansing with 18; Houghton Lake, 16; Jackson, 15; Tri-Cities, 17; and Ypsilanti, 19.
In the Upper Peninsula, Houghton and Marquette reported six inches of snow on the ground Friday, but most remained from earlier snowfalls.
The National Weather Service forecast more snow Sunday in southwest Lower Michigan and the western Upper Peninsula.
The storm may have had something to do with an interruption in a switchyard that caused reactor at the Palisades nuclear power plant near South Haven to shut down automatically.
Consumer Power Co. officials said 600 customers in Leelanau County's Elmwood Township were without power for four hours Friday night after a tree fell on a primary line in Greilickville. Another 600 customers in the Frankfort area lost power for two hours in a snow-related blackout, the utility reported.
Although the snow made many motorists unhappy, ski slope operators were in a different frame of mind. They opened a number of slopes in 13 areas, where conditions ranged from fair to very good following the storm.

when many of Colorado's ski slopes were bare of snow, 20 of the state's major ski areas opened their slopes during the long holiday weekend.
"We're feeling pretty good now, in fact, very enthusiastic," said Emily Snyder of the Aspen Skiing Corp.
Fran Villa of Vail Associates Inc. reported a 17-inch snow base — the best snow conditions for November in three years.
More than 3,800 skiers turned out in the Vail area, where

PBB Burials Months Away

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — It may be February before the first cattle tainted with more PBB than a new state law allows are buried in a huge pit in Oshtemo County, state officials predict.
Robert Compeau, chief of the DNR's bureau of management services, said that officials expect to have specifications ready for the burial site by Dec. 1 under a tentative timetable. Contracts will be let within 15 days of that date, Compeau predicted, and the site ready within another 60 days. State officials agreed earlier this month to install a 20-foot clay lining at the burial site near Mio, despite fears that the clay would be costly and difficult to obtain. The agreement followed a court order requiring the barrier, estimated to cost some $1.5 million, before the condemned cattle could be buried there.

Director Takes Blame

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Town Hall lecture program, which in its 48-year history featured such speakers as Winston Churchill and Eleanor Roosevelt, is out of business temporarily because of a tardy mailing to prospective members. Norman Green, director of the lecture series, said notices of the current season did not get out to prospective members until three or four days before the first program. As a result, he said, only 194 persons subscribed at $25 each for the four-lecture program. Last year there were 700 members, he said. She said the delayed mailing was her fault and added, "I plan to be back with another series in September."

BRIDGEPORT, W.Va. (AP) — A forgetful gunman returned to the savings and loan branch office he had just robbed to pick up a portable walkie talkie he left behind. The man entered a branch of the First Federal Savings and Loan bank in Clarksburg Friday afternoon, announced to the lone teller it was a holdup, and gave her a bribe case to fill with cash. After dashing out of the building with $2,500, police said, the gunman returned moments later to pick up the walkie talkie.

Sewer Fund Tiff Easing

DETROIT (AP) — A dispute over dividing up $403 million in federal funds for Michigan sewage projects has moved a step closer to a settlement at a pretrial conference before U.S. District Judge John Folsom. The meeting between attorneys for the city of Detroit and many other communities produced a tentative stipulation in release some of the money. A temporary injunction was issued Sept. 14 blocking release of the funds. The cities disagree on how the money should be divided up.
Assistant U.S. Attorney Peter Kelly, who represented the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), said a formal stipulation would be prepared for presentation at another hearing Wednesday.

Salary Order Reversed

LANSING (AP) — The Michigan Court of Appeals has reversed an Oakland County Circuit Court order that George Heil pay half his income for five years to the wife and children of a man killed in a car accident. Heil was convicted of manslaughter in the crash, and as a condition of probation he was ordered to pay $3,000 and half his net salary for five years to the victim's family. The court said it was not clear that the payments reimbursed the family only for losses attributable to the auto accident. Thus, it said, the payments were illegal. And it said it was improper to revoke Heil's probation for failing to make the payments. The court also upheld the exclusion of motorcycles from the state's no-fault auto insurance law.

Artist Out Of Hospital

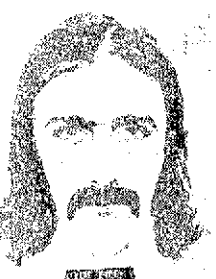

DETROIT (AP) — An elderly artist whose five-year global journey was interrupted when he was mugged by two knife-wielding youths Nov. 18 is out of Detroit General Hospital. Gino Corradines, 77, an Argentinian painter, had been hospitalized until Friday with stab wounds to the chest suffered in the attack near the Ambassador Bridge linking Detroit and Windsor, Ont. "He was listed in serious condition when he was brought here but he made a fast recovery," said hospital spokesman Tom Badway. Badway said the artist, whose travels have taken him to 22 countries, did not say where he was headed.

Man Held For Observation

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — A gunman who held his girlfriend and her two children in their apartment for more than four hours was being held at a state hospital for observation. Police said the siege occurred Friday at an apartment building on Pontiac's west side. Paul Cook, 34, of Pontiac, was taken into custody when police rushed the apartment and knocked a shotgun from his hands, officials said. No shots were fired. Cook was taken to the Clinton Valley Center State Hospital for observation.

Say Theft Ring Smashed

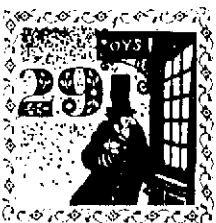

PLINT, Mich. (AP) — The arrest of three Flint area men smashed a multi-state theft ring specializing in auto parts, says the Genesee County sheriff's department. The ring's operators fenced more than $1 million a year in auto parts stolen from General Motors Corp. plants in the Flint area. Sheriff John O'Brien said. Investigators broke the case open when an undercover police officer bought some of the stolen parts. The FBI, Wayne County authorities and GM internal security investigators aided the 16-month probe.

A Cold Tribute

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Getting a glacier named after him didn't leave a University of Maryland professor cold, but he admits, "There is probably less to it than meets the eye." The U.S. Board of Geographic Names recently honored Theodore J. Rosenberg by naming a glacier after him in recognition of the research he has done in Antarctica, where he and a team of scientists from the University of Maryland have been studying energy particles and electromagnetic waves. Rosenberg said he doesn't know what guidelines are used for naming places in Antarctica after people. Rosenberg said the glacier bearing his name is 760 miles west of Siple Station, a research area on the Palmer Peninsula in Antarctica. The professor said he doesn't know how big the glacier is, and doesn't ever expect to see it.

Snow Called Factor In Area Road Deaths

By STEVE McQUOWN

Assistant State Editor

And ASSOCIATED PRESS

A 65-year-old Eau Claire man and a 20-year-old Holland woman were killed in separate weather-related traffic accidents Friday in Berrien and Allegan counties.

Killed were Karl C. Schlipp, an Eau Claire wrecker service operator and Sheryl Meyer who died in Allegan County.

Both deaths were linked to Friday's snow and slippery roads. The Associated Press said three others across the state died in weather-related traffic mishaps, bringing to 17 the number killed on the state's roads since the Thanksgiving holiday began at 6 p.m., Wednesday.

Berrien County Sheriff's Sgt. Robert Greer said Schlipp was fatally injured in Rodus Township when he was struck by a car as he tried to assist another motorist stuck in the snow.

The accident occurred about 1:57 p.m. on Pipestone Road, near Left Road. Schlipp died about two hours later at Berrien General Hospital, deputies said.

Greer said Schlipp was standing at the rear of his wrecker when an oncoming car hit an auto stuck in the snow, and then struck the wrecker and Schlipp. The driver of the auto was identified as Bruce E. Martin, 22, 302 Maple St., Dowagiac.

The Eau Claire man was the county's 29th traffic victim this year. Deputies said Martin was not ticketed but the mishap remains under investigation.

Holland city police said the Holland woman, Sheryl Meyer, was killed when the jeep in which she had been riding with her husband Gary rolled on a slippery road, throwing her out, and then rolled over on her.

Police said the accident occurred about 11:30 p.m., on 48th Street, near M-40 in the city limits.

Her husband was not injured, police said. The woman's death was the 25th in Allegan county this year.

Funeral services for Karl Schlipp will be held Tuesday at 2 p.m. at United Church of Christ, Eau Claire. Burial will be in Shanghai Cemetery. Friends may call Sunday after 7 p.m. at Bowdman Funeral Home and until 12:30 p.m. Tuesday. Memorials may be made to the church.

He was born Feb. 2, 1912, in Rovani, Germany. He was the owner and president of Five Corners Garage, Inc., Eau Claire.

Survivors include his wife, the former Nettie Laft; three sons, Donald, Delbert, and Douglas, all of Eau Claire; 10 grandchildren; two brothers, Adolph of Sawyer and William of St. Joseph; three half-brothers, Reinold Schlipp, Coloma, Robert Schlipp, South Haven, Alfred Schlipp, Coloma; and one sister, Mrs. John (Elizabeth) Miles, Pennville.

Crashes Claim 279

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic accidents had claimed 279 lives around the nation by early today, with the hurricanoid rash still ahead in the four-day Thanksgiving weekend.

The National Safety Council estimated 480 to 560 persons might be killed on highways during the period that began at 6 p.m. Wednesday and ends at midnight Sunday.

The record traffic death toll for a Thanksgiving weekend was 764 in 1968. Last year, 467 persons died in traffic.

Weather continued to plague travelers in most of the northern half of the nation as well as parts of the South.

A major blizzard threatened in the Northeast. Heavy snow slowed travel in scattered areas from the Great Lakes eastward. Freezing rain glazed parts of the northwestern Plains, and heavy rain caused flooding in the Pacific Northwest.

Last-Minute Trojan FG Nips Bruins

Washington In Rose Bowl

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was the biggest win of the year for Washington and the Huskies didn't even get their uniforms dirty.

Washington earned its first trip to the Rose Bowl in 14 years when Southern Cal edged UCLA 29-27 Friday night on Frank Jordan's 38-yard field goal with two seconds remaining in their intra-city college football rivalry.

A victory by UCLA would have sent the Bruins to the Jan. 2 classic in Pasadena. But Jordan's field goal knocked UCLA out of the bowl picture, gave Southern Cal a spot in the Bluebonnet Bowl against either Texas or Texas A&M and made Washington the Pacific-8's representative in the Rose Bowl against Michigan of the Big Ten.

"It was like coming off the field after a big win," said Washington Coach Don James, who watched the thriller on television. Washington finished with a 6-1 Pac-8 mark, while both Southern Cal and 17th-ranked UCLA were 5-2 in conference play.

Oklahoma and Arizona State were other big winners Friday.

Oklahoma, ranked No. 3 nationally, clinched the Big Eight championship and a berth in the Orange Bowl in Miami Jan. 2 by overpowering Nebraska 38-7 Friday afternoon with an awesome offensive display led by quarterback Thomas Lott and running back Elvis Peacock.

As a consolation prize, 11th-ranked Nebraska will be going to the Liberty Bowl in Memphis, Tenn. Dec. 19 against North Carolina.

No. 10 Arizona State, meanwhile, beat Arizona 23-7 to become the Western Athletic Conference's representative in the Fiesta Bowl. The Sun Devils will play Penn State at Tempe, Ariz. on Christmas Day.

Southern Cal's Jordan went from goat to hero in a matter of minutes. His two missed extra points did not appear crucial when Southern Cal moved out to a 26-10 lead, but Rick Bashore's passing cut apart the Trojans' defense throughout the second half and he finally put the Bruins ahead 27-26 with a yard scoring strike to Don Pederson with 2:56 to play.

But Southern Cal, led by Rob

Hertel, who completed 15 of 24 passes for 284 yards; took the ensuing kickoff and marched from its own 27 to set up Jordan's third field goal of the game.

The Trojans were out of timeouts and had to hurry to get the field goal off, but that turned out to be a blessing in disguise. "It happened so fast," said Jordan, "I didn't have time to be nervous."

Southern California Coach John Robinson would have preferred to have been playing for a Rose Bowl bid, but he is happy his club will be seeing postseason action.

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer was more than thankful. "We're not going to the river, we're going to the beach," he rejoiced after his team's sixth straight victory over Big Eight rival Nebraska, showing he prefers the shores of the Atlantic Ocean (the Orange Bowl in Miami) to the banks of the Mississippi River (the Liberty Bowl in Memphis).

"This offensive team is the best I've ever coached," added Switzer. Lott and Peacock out-trusted the entire Nebraska backfield, 266 yards to 190. Lott, who drove the Cornhuskers dizzy with his execution of the options off the Wishbone, rushed for 143 yards and one touchdown while Peacock, a senior, gained 123 yards and scored twice.

Crystal Falls Forest Park (11-0) and Flint Holy Rosary (10-1) were to meet at 10 a.m. for the Class D crown. It was the third straight year the two schools, located 530 miles apart, had fought for the title.

Big Crowd For Finals

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Crowds of between 35,000 and 40,000 were expected at the Silverdome today as Michigan's top eight high school football teams battled it out for the state championships.

Portage Central (11-0) was to meet Birmingham Brother Rice (11-0) for the Class A game at 1 p.m., in a contest featuring two of the state's most celebrated quarterbacks, Jon English of Brother Rice and Pete Metzelaars of Portage Central.

The Class B battle pitted Saginaw MacArthur (11-0) against Jackson Lumen Christi (10-1) at 8 p.m. MacArthur is playing for its second state championship in three years.

The Class C title was to be decided in a game at 5 p.m. between Iron River West Iron County (10-1) and Orchard Lake St. Mary (11-0). The Wykons of West Iron flew by charter plane to Pontiac. The team features the running of Paul Duke and Mark Ronetti. Orchard Lake features the passing, running and scoring of quarterback Jim Paetorek, whose record includes 25 touchdowns and 11 TD passes.

Crystal Falls Forest Park (11-0) and Flint Holy Rosary (10-1) were to meet at 10 a.m. for the Class D crown. It was the third straight year the two schools, located 530 miles apart, had fought for the title.

'Bum' Quarterbacks Probable NFL Starters Sunday

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

One team has nothing to lose, the other team everything. The situations almost are mirror images. But the words from the coaches couldn't be more similar.

The New York Jets are 3-8 and going nowhere this National Football League season. And they are thinking of starting Richard Todd, their quarterback with the bum knee, against powerful Pittsburgh Sunday.

The Oakland Raiders are 8-2 and trying to get back to the Super Bowl they won a year ago. And they are thinking of starting Ken Stabler, their quarterback with the bum knee, against bumbling Buffalo Monday night.

Todd was injured three weeks ago in a game against Miami. Stabler was hurt last Sunday against San Diego.

Also Sunday, it will be Baltimore at Denver and Los Angeles at Cleveland in a pair of games matching divisional leaders, plus Dallas at Washington, Minnesota at Green Bay, Atlanta at Tampa Bay, the New York Giants at Cincinnati, Philadelphia at New England, Kansas City at Houston, San Diego at Seattle and New Orleans at San Francisco.

Joe Greene, Pittsburgh's fierce defensive tackle, is the guy who will be going after Todd — or his replacement, rookie Matt

Robinson. And he can't figure out why the Jets, building their hopes of the next decade on Todd, would want to use Joe Namath's heir against the Steelers.

"If Todd is the Jets' whole future, as they say, and he is under par, then they shouldn't play him. They're 3-8, the game can't possibly mean much to them in that position."

It means a lot to the Steelers, 6-1 and tied for first with Cleveland in the tight American Football Conference Central Division.

Baltimore's lead over Miami is 1 1/2 games in the AFC East, so it appears the teams' critical game will be Monday night, Dec. 5, when the Colts and Dolphins meet at Miami. The Rams, whose National Football Conference West lead over Atlanta is two games, have won their last four games against Cleveland.

Dallas will be trying to widen its lead over St. Louis to two games in the NFC East and virtually keep the Redskins from the playoffs, while Minnesota hopes to regain its ongame edge over Chicago in the NFC Central.

As it has every week since it became a member of the league 24 games ago, Tampa Bay is trying to get its inaugural victory. The Buccaneers, who have scored a league-low 53 points this season, go against the Atlanta Falcons, who have allowed a league-low 53.

Unbeaten Lakers, Bucks In Same District

Girls' Cage Tourney Starts Monday

Who is truly number one in southwestern Michigan girls basketball?

Area fans might get a chance to find out if everything goes according to plan in the Class C district tournament at Buchanan, which starts Monday.

Lake Michigan Catholic and Buchanan each finished the regular season with unpublished 194 records. And if both can get by two preliminary opponents, the two will collide in the district finals next Saturday.

The district is one of seven involving area teams next week. The Class A tournament is at Benton Harbor where the host school collides with St. Joseph Wednesday night.

Area tournaments are also being held at Lakeshore in Class B, at Bloomingdale and Marcellus in Class C and at Lawton and Lawrence in Class D.

Led by four-year starter Patience Vanderbush, Buchanan has rolled over three Class A schools and twice beaten each of four Class B schools in posting its perfect mark. Vanderbush is averaging 16.8 points per game and is southwestern Michigan top career scorer with 1,395 points.

Forward Helen McQuillan is the big gun for Catholic, averaging 14.3 points per game. The Lakers have beaten two Class A and two Class B teams.

Buchanan is averaging 60.8 points per game, while allowing 40.3. The Lakers are scoring only 40.3, but are giving up just 30.1.

Douglas (16-4) and Wolverine co-champ South Haven (15-5) are the favorites at Lakeshore. And the two collide Monday in the Class B tourney's first game. Host Lakeshore has a good shot at making the finals, needing only victories over River Valley (2-15) and Paw Paw (5-13) to gain a title game berth. The Lakers are 9-11.

Southwestern Michigan's top scorer, Willie Gains, will be the key to Cassopolis' hopes in the Class C tourney at Marcellus. Gains finished the regular season with 484 points and a 26.9 average in helping the Rangers to a 14-4 record.

DuWagne (16-4) and Wolverine co-champ South Haven (15-5) are the favorites at Lakeshore. And the two collide Monday in the Class B tourney's first game. Host Lakeshore has a good shot at making the finals, needing only victories over River Valley (2-15) and Paw Paw (5-13) to gain a title game berth. The Lakers are 9-11.

Gaels Survive Panther Rally

GALLEN — Gallen survived a late Watervliet comeback to register a 65-52 victory here Friday night in a Red Arrow Conference game.

The Gaels, now 2-0 on the season, took a 21-point lead in the second half but the Panthers cut that to only five points at the start of the last period. But then the Gaels regrouped and started to pull away again.

Both teams ended with 22 field goals, but Gallen connected on 21 of 33 free throw attempts to only eight of 15 for the hosts.

Senior Jerry Woodrick, who played a "real steady game" according to Gallen Coach Mike Heckathorn, swished 21 points. He was seven of 11 from the field and seven of eight from the charity lines. John Gunn and Doug Barnett added 11 each and Otto Parsons 10.

The Panthers had John Hiler and Brian Epple with 10 points each.

A poor-shooting first half really hurt the Panthers, who were six of 37 in the frigid first 16 minutes. For the game Watervliet was 22 of 79 for 28 per cent. Gallen ended at 22 of 58 for 38 per cent.

Gallen held a 51-41 edge on the boards and made 25 turnovers to the Panthers' 19.

Watervliet was playing its first game of the season.

Marty Koziel hit 19 points as the Gaels won the jayvee contest 68-52.

New Buffalo Is For Real!

EAU CLAIRE — New Buffalo is for real!

The Bisons, who won only two games all last year, matched that total Friday night with a convincing 65-52 win over Eau Claire in a Red Arrow boys basketball encounter.

New Buffalo is now 2-0, having upset Edwardsburg on Tuesday night.

Some balanced scoring and an effective zone defense helped the Bisons to their win.

Roger Lijewski poked in 22 points to pace the Bisons. He hit on 14 of 20 from the charity lines, including seven in the last quarter when New Buffalo scored 13 of its 15 points from the foul stripes. Don Major added 12 points and Jim Wold and Kevin Steink 13 each.

The Beavers, hurt by foul trouble, had Don Geisler with 13 points for its only double-digit scorer. Chuck Hunter, an all-league eager, was held to nine points as he got in early foul trouble.

Eau Claire, showing typical opening game "jitters" according to Coach Dave Gray, ended hitting only 17 of 64 shots for 27 per cent and were 18 of 28 in foul shooting. The Bisons were 20 of 58 for 34 per cent and 25 of 35 for 72 per cent from the lines.

The Bisons took a 16-13 first-period lead and built up its lead in every quarter after that.

Keith Carlson also did a solid job off the bench for the Bisons.

No Shrine Game At Silverdome

DETROIT (AP) — Sponsors of last year's North-Star Shrine All-Star football game at the Pontiac Silverdome have decided not to stage the contest this year because of costs, but the organizers vow they will return in 1978.

"The cost factors, including insurance, are enormous," Fred Morrison Jr., managing director of the 1976 game, said Friday. "...We want to solicit a TV package for next year and make sure that we do it right."

Tech Triumphs

Brother Rice Left Out Again In All-State Balloting

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
Al Fracassa and his Birmingham Brother Rice football team were out to prove a few things today in the Class A finals of the state high school playoffs.

Brother Rice was perhaps the most overlooked team in the state this season despite a 9-0 record that produced a championship in the rugged Detroit Catholic League.

Coach Fracassa and his team never could supplant Flint Southwestern in the weekly ratings, finishing second in the final poll while Southwestern was named No. 1 for the second straight year.

Brother Rice was left out again when the AP's All-State panel met. It was the only school to finish among the Top Ten in the polls that did not land a player on the AP's elite list.

Every other rated school grabbed at least one All-State berth led by Flint Southwestern, No. 3 Plymouth Salem, and No. 4 St. Clair Shores Lake Shore with two selections each.

The other members of the final top 10, Detroit Southwestern (fifth), East Kentwood and East Lansing (tied for sixth), Saginaw Arthur Hill (eighth), Portage Central (ninth), and Clarkson (10th), landed one All-State each.

Unranked Farmington Harrison, which posted a 7-2 record and was a finalist last year in the playoffs, was the other school with two All-

State.

Dave Smith, the outstanding lineman of Portage Central, will be the only Class A All-Stater in action today. Portage Central, like Brother Rice, will take an 11-0 record into the finals.

Jeff Smith, who coached East Lansing to the 19-14 upset of Flint Southwestern in the quarterfinals, was named Coach of the Year. The victory gave Smith a seven-year record of 57-7, best in the state in Class A for this period, but a week later it became 57-8 when Portage Central eliminated the Trojans, 24-7.

The quarterbacks on this year's team are Gary Lee, a senior from Flint Southwestern, and Rich Hewlett, a junior from Plymouth Salem.

Hewlett is the only junior to make All-State.

The backs are Reggie Mitchell, Flint Southwestern; John Anes, East Kentwood; Tony Greene, Detroit Kettering; Ross Rocheleau, St. Clair Shores Lake Shore; Dave Cassell, Trenton; and Bruce Brownie, Royal Oak Kimball.

Joining Dave Smith on the line are East Lansing's Steve Muddlow, Luis Sharpe, Detroit Southwestern; Bob Dasher, Plymouth Salem; George Cooper, Detroit Northern; Earvin Walker, Pontiac Central; Steve Facine, Hazel Park; Randy Verbeke, St. Clair Shores Lake Shore; Syd Standing, Clarkson; and John Greutznier, Romeo.

The ends are Brad Bache, Farmington Harrison; Bill Cibulka, Dearborn Fordson; Gary Kipke, Saginaw Arthur Hill; and John Horwath, Northville.

Lee is one of the most highly sought quarterbacks in the state among college recruiters because he can run the option as well as pass. He completed 50 of 135 passes for 1,055 yards and 10 touchdowns and averaged 5.2 yards on 82 runs.

Hewlett was an outstanding runner. He gained 910 yards on 50 attempts and averaged 120 yards passing.

Mitchell, Greene and Rocheleau were unanimous choices as backs. Mitchell excels as both a runner and a receiver. He gained 797 yards on 188 rushes, scored eight touchdowns and caught 11 passes for 195 yards and six touchdowns.

Greene, a burly fullback, played for more than 1,000 yards, scored 15 touchdowns and is considered the best all-around player in the Detroit Public School League.

Rocheleau sparked Lake Shore to its second straight undefeated regular season with 1,151 yards rushing in 1,040 carries and 20 touchdowns.

Anes was one of the top runners in the state in Class A with 1,323 yards rushing in 182 attempts. He scored 20 touchdowns.

Cassell led Trenton in both rushing and receiving, averaging nearly 10 yards per carry with 1,071 yards. He caught 12 passes and scored 14 touchdowns.

Brownie sparked Kimball to an 8-1 record with 1,300 yards and 17 touchdowns, including six in one game.

Linemen Muddlow, Sharpe and Dasher are being hotly pursued by college coaches. Muddlow is a linebacker; Sharpe is considered the best tackle in the Public School League. Dasher is an outstanding center and a powerful tackle on defense.

Verbeke anchored the Lake Shore defense that produced eight straight shutouts. Standing was a standout at middle guard and tackle for Clarkson, and Walker was a four-year starter at Pontiac Central.

Facine was ranked the best all-around player in the Southeastern Michigan Association as a strong two-way tackle. Greutznier overcame a handicap of being deaf to spark Romeo to a 9-0 campaign with 45 solo tackles, 56 assists, and nine quarterback sacks.

Cooper was ranked behind only Sharpe in the Public School League.

Bache was a star for Harrison playing offensive and defensive.

Cibulka paced Fordson to a 7-0 record. He played either split end or tight end on offense. Kipke was an all-around performer for Arthur Hill. He caught 15 passes for 317 yards and as a linebacker led a defense that produced five shutouts in an 8-1 season. Northville's Horwath caught 38 passes for 705 yards and intercepted seven passes.

The kicker is Brett Homövec of Farmington Harrison.

Homövec, who also was the team's quarterback, was successful on 20 of 22 conversion attempts and in one game kicked field goals of 47 and 48 yards to break the school record set in 1975 by Paul Rogind, who now is kicking at the University of Minnesota.

Ron Gunn Tops Again

DOWAGIAC — The National Junior College Athletic Association has named Ron Gunn of Southwestern Michigan College as the 1977 Cross Country Coach of the Year.

This is the third national Coach of the Year award for Gunn. The honor was voted by the Cross Country Coaches Association of the NJCAA.

The award came upon the heels of SMC's second-place team finish in the national championships earlier this month in Tucson, Arizona.

Gunn, who also serves as Dean of Sports Education at SMC, guided teams to finishes in the top 10 nationally the last seven years, winning national titles in 1973, 1974 and 1975. The 1976 squad finished third and the Roadrunners ended seventh and eighth in 1971 and 1972, respectively. In addition, SMC teams have dominated Midwest competition by winning seven straight state and regional crowns and placing high in several prestigious Midwest invitational, most involving four-year colleges.

Of particular pride to Gunn is that the Roadrunner program operates on a minimum scholarship program and relies on American athletic talent.

Gunn also coaches the track team and has won three Michigan junior college state titles.

Gunn came to SMC in 1967 from Bowling Green State University where he served as a graduate assistant in track and football. He competed in intercollegiate athletics at Augustana College in Illinois and interscholastic athletics at Moline, Ill.

He currently serves as chairman of the MCCAA cross country coaches and was president of the NJCAA Cross Country Coaches Association in 1975.

Lancers' Smith Heads List

Area Mat Hopes Good

RON GUNN

Southwestern Michigan sported two state wrestling champions last season, but prospects are good for a better year this season.

Six of the top nine wrestlers on the Herald-Palladium's Honor Roll return this year, with Lakeshore's Doug Smith topping the list.

The senior finished second in the Class B state meet in both his sophomore and junior years. Last season, he won his first 41 matches before losing to Scott Lamphere of Bullock Creek in the finals.

The two state champions from last season were Mitch Jeffery and Scott Adams. Jeffery graduated and was killed in a recent automobile accident. Adams also graduated.

Another second place finisher who was fourth on the Honor Roll and is back for his senior year is Covert's Ray Freeman. The Bulldog weighed only 178 pounds, but wrestled in the 191-pound class. This year he's up to 191, reports Head Coach Jim Babcock.

Smith's teammate, Jamie Lange, also returns. The senior will move up one weight class to 138 this season. At 132, he compiled a 45-2 record and was third in the state meet.

The only other returner to gain a state medal last season is Mike Fisher of Buchanan. The junior was fourth at 38 pounds.

The other grapplers among the top nine on the Honor Roll who are back are Gus Thaler of South Haven and Dave Vireott of Eau Claire. Vireott qualified for the state finals while Thaler was upset in the regionals.

Junior Bob Ferrell of Waterford is the only other wrestler among last season's top 20 who is back.

State meet qualifiers who will be back include Edwardsburg grapplers Dan Parsons and Craig Humphrey and Earl Sorsby and Wendell Mitchell of Cassopolis.

In the Biggest Losses Department, Brantwine was decimated by graduation. All seven wrestlers in last year's top 20 aren't around. These seven helped the Bobcats win the Blossomland and regional titles and finish second in the Class C state meet.

The only big rule change for the season involves a wrestler backing off a mat. If a grappler tries to avoid competition by going off the mat, a penalty point will be awarded to his opponent.

Call Issued For Swimmers

Anyone interested in joining the Bridgman "Y" Sea Bees can call Stan Markavitch at the Bridgman Community Pool (465-6848) after 6 p.m.

In their first meet of the season, the Sea Bees lost to Owassee last Saturday. Tyler Birmingham and David Loeffler were the triple winners and Tawn Ziebart, Jeremy Firehammer, Joel Firehammer, Jon Firehammer and Steve Kays were the double winners.

Berrien Girls Defeat Valley

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Berrien Springs girls wrapped up a 15-5 regular season by defeating River Valley 53-44 in non-league basketball action here Wednesday night. Jackie Backus netted 18 and Cathy Dooker 11 for Berrien, while Julie Goodie had 16 for Valley. Berrien Springs also won the junior varsity preliminary.

Gilmore, Holland Pace Bull Win Bucks' Victory Incredible

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
It was, in a word, incredible.
The Milwaukee Bucks, playing on the road, overcame a 29-point deficit with just 8:43 left to play, limited Atlanta to just 11 points in the fourth quarter and beat the Hawks 117-115 Friday night, Rookie Marques Johnson sank two free throws with one

"To say we collapsed is an understatement," a stunned

Hawks Coach Hubie Brown said.
Milwaukee scored 17 points in a row in one stretch of the fourth quarter and finally tied the game on a jumper by Lloyd Walton with 27 seconds remaining before Johnson hit his game-winning free throws. Reserve Junior Bridgeman led the Bucks with 24 points.

Elsewhere in the NBA Friday night, the Boston Celtics edged the New York Knicks 121-119 in overtime, the Philadelphia 76ers triumphed the Golden State Warriors 125-119 in overtime, the Phoenix Suns beat the Indiana Pacers 118-110, the Los Angeles Lakers defeated the New Jersey Nets 128-117 and the Chicago Bulls topped the Seattle SuperSonics 108-88.

New York overcame a 21-point deficit in the second half to send the game into overtime, then came back from a six-point deficit in the extra period for a 119-119 tie before Jo Jo White hit two free throws with three seconds remaining to win it for Boston.

Charlie Scott topped Boston with 23 points but New York guard Earl Monroe came on as a reserve to lead all scorers with 37.

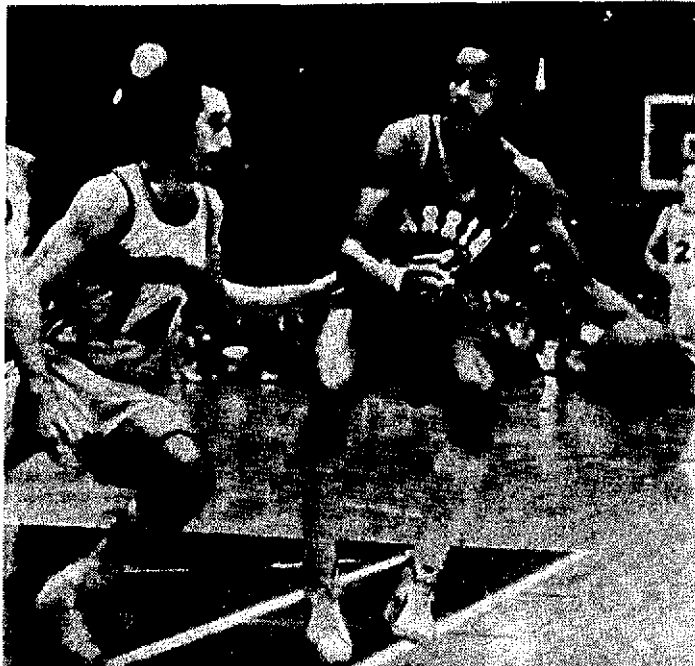

Golden State, which lost its third in a row, erased a 17-point deficit in the fourth quarter and sent its game at Philadelphia into overtime on Charles Dudley's layup with 35 seconds left that made the score 113-113. But Doug Collins' running jumper snapped a 118-118 tie during the extra period, then Julius Erving clinched the victory with two free throws and a layup.

George McGinnis, of Philadelphia led all scorers with 34 points.

Phoenix raised its record to 10-5 as Paul Westphal and Alvan Adams scored 30 points apiece and Gar Heard added 25, offsetting 35 by Indiana's Adrian Dantley. Heard's basket with 7:47 to play put the Suns ahead to stay at 97-86.

James Edwards scored 31 points and second-year man Tim Abernathy hit 10 of his first 12 shots and scored a career-high 24 for the Lakers, who handed New Jersey its 13th loss in 17 games. The Nets trailed by just one point midway through the final period before Los Angeles pulled away. Kevin Porter scored 35 points for New Jersey and Bob Carrington 28, both career highs.

Artis Gilmore and Wilbur Holland combined for 35 points in the second half for Chicago, which pulled away from the Sonics, now 5-15. Gilmore was the game's leading scorer with 32 points, 17 in the second half, and Holland had 22 for the game.

FLINT GENERALS

Clip K-Wings

Jim Johnston collected a goal and two assists to lead the Flint Generals to a 5-3 victory over the Kalamazoo Wings in the International Hockey League Friday.

Flint fell behind by a 3-1 score midway in the opening period, but rallied to score the last four goals of the game.

Rich Catinella banged home what proved to be the winning goal at the 6:00 of the final period. Flint leads the IHL, North Division with a 11-6-0 record, while Kalamazoo is last at 3-8-5.

No other games were scheduled Friday. Games tonight include Flint at Port Huron, Kalamazoo at Muskegon, Saginaw at Port Huron and Toledo at Dayton.

Highly-Rated ND Facing Ole Miss

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame basketball Coach Digger Phelps is trying to play down pre-season evaluations that his seventh Irish team is a contender for a national championship.

"I'm more concerned with how people evaluate our team in March than now," said Phelps, whose fourth-rated team opens its season here today against Mississippi.

Phelps' squad is in excellent physical condition as it tries to avenge the school's only football loss of the season — a setback which may cost the gridders a national championship.

Some Irish engers, mindful their school was heavily favored to beat Ole Miss in football, have been wearing T-shirts in practice with the score of that game — Ole Miss 20, Notre Dame 13.

Phelps' starters are familiar. They include 6-foot-11 Bill Lalmbier, who rejoins the team after being ineligible for scholastic reasons after playing 10 games for the Irish during the 1975-76 season. He averaged 8.2 points and 7.9 rebounds per game.

Other starters are 6-8 Bruce Flowers and 6-9 Dave Batton, regulars for the third year. Batton averaged 12.2 points and 6.4 rebounds per game for the 23-7 Irish last season. Flowers scored 11.3 points per outing and led the team in field goal percentage for the second consecutive season.

Sophomore Rich Brunning, who started the team's final 22 games and led the club in assists last season, is back at guard along with Don Williams, whose 18.1 scoring average was the highest on the squad.

"I have to improve my defense," said Brunning, "and I would like to be more aggressive offensively. The big thing a point guard must do is create situations. If you bent your man, that doesn't necessarily mean you should shoot."

The starters are joined by a group of freshmen expected to get their share of playing time.

The newcomers include 6-9 Orlando Woudridge, a cousin of former National Basketball Association star Willis Reed; 6-5 Tracy Jackson, who was named the metro player of the year in the talent-laden Washington, D.C., area; 6-7

Kelly Tripucka, the son of former Irish quarterback Frank Tripucka; 6-6 guard Stan Wilcox, a former Long Island star in New York who made 66 per cent of his field goal attempts last season; and 6-11 Gilbert Salinas, who set a San Antonio city record for career scoring with 2,302 points.

Mississippi, 11-16 last season, is coached by former Indiana assistant coach Bob Wetlich. He'll have another former Hoosier, 6-9 Kim Benson, in the starting lineup. Benson, whose brother was an All-American at Indiana, transferred to Ole Miss from Northwood Institute and is his team's biggest starter.

Ivan Boldirev scored three goals to lead Chicago over Colorado. Boldirev connected twice within 20 seconds of the second period as the Black Hawks built a 4-0 lead and ended an eight-game winless streak. During that span, Chicago had lost five games and tied three.

The Chicago triumph also prevented Colorado from moving into a first-place tie in the Smythe Division and expanded the Black Hawks' lead to four points over the Rockies.

Flyers' Triumph Paced By Leach

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Reggie Leach tries to make the most of every opportunity. And that's how he scored against the Cleveland Barons.

The right winger's rebound broke a 1-1 tie to start the Philadelphia Flyers on their way to a 7-2 National Hockey League victory over the Barons Friday afternoon.

Leach tapped a loose puck behind Cleveland goalie Gary Edwards, who had failed to control a shot fired by Philadelphia defenseman Kevin McCarthy.

Three minutes later Philadelphia forward Barry Dean was credited with a tally when Barons' forward Dennis Maruk inadvertently backhanded the puck into his own net and the Flyers were off and away.

The victory boosted Philadelphia into first place in the Patrick Division, one point ahead of the New York Islanders, while Cleveland remained last in the Adams Division.

In another NHL game, the Chicago Black Hawks trounced the Colorado Rockies 5-1.

The Philadelphia-Cleveland game was stopped with 42 seconds remaining in the first period when a bench-clearing brawl erupted. Four players were ejected.

The hapless Barons, and their predecessors, the Oakland Seals, have won a total of only four of 34 games at Philadelphia's Spectrum.

Cass Lost Top Scorers From Bud's Title Team

CASSOPOLIS — Defending Blossomland champion Cassopolis will be hard pressed to match last year's 18-4 record.

The Rangers have lost their top three scorers from last season's team, which topped southwestern Michigan by scoring 78.4 points per game.

Kevin Loder (20.2 points per game) and Glen Hawkins (16.7) graduated and guard Marshall Sinclair (11.0) is out indefinitely after knee surgery. Sinclair tore knee ligaments in Cass' Class C state playoff football game against Lake Michigan Catholic.

"We hope we'll get him back by the end of January or the beginning of February," Ranger Coach Bob Fullett says.

Baseball Riding 'Fidrych Syndrome'

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Everything in baseball is not euphoric, but America's favorite pastime is floating on the wave of what Commissioner Bowie Kuhn calls "the Fidrych Syndrome."

"We have a new generation that has fallen in love with the game," the tall, low-key executive said, his optimism reflecting the rosy color of his shirt. "In the past few years we have seen our young people move more toward the arts and cultural things, and I think you can say that baseball, with its non-violent nature, has benefitted from this trend."

"I don't consider it presumptuous when I say baseball is attracting more young people than any other major sport. More and more, these fans relate to the game's personalities."

"Mark Fidrych is a manifestation of it — a unique individual that has brought new stimulation to the sport. How long has it been since you saw a crowd call a player out of the dugout to take a bow after the game was over?"

The barons of baseball go into their winter meetings in Honolulu in less than two weeks facing a state of headaches — some new, some old. Topping the agenda probably will be the economic problem, rising out of the unrealistic multi-million dollar price tags on free agents, threatening to throw the competitive scales off balance.

Old scorched acorns include the crunch in the Bay Area (where Oakland and San Francisco provide one too many teams for the population); the prospect of getting a franchise in Washington, D.C., where a watchdog Congress resides plus the collective bargaining agreement and television contract, each of which has two more years remaining.

But the baseball brass can go to the peaceful islands Dec. 5-9 with buttons popping over in attendance boom which keeps breaking records every year. Crowds in 1977 were up 22 per cent over 1976 and 26 per cent over 1975. The $4,244,382 fans in 1977 represented a total increase of 20 million over the previous two seasons.

Spectator interest carried over to the playoffs and World Series, with total attendance for 15 games — 813,005 — exceeding that of the 17 games played in 1976. The World Series alone drew 337,708.

"A baseball game is not just a contest — it is a happening," said Kuhn, an imposing 6-foot-5 figure who maintains a poker-straight physique and low profile. "It may sound corny but I think it best reflects the personality of the country. It involves conflict, hot emotions, partisan feelings."

"It also involves personalities — especially personalities." The commissioner cited the World Series as the best example.

"I don't recall a Series — not even the exciting Boston-Cincinnati Series in 1975 — that generated as much talk," he added. "Two old rivals, the contrast in the two teams and the exciting players."

"The volatile Reggie Jackson ... the young, attractive Steve Garvey ... Sparky Lyle ... and the two contrasting managers, Billy Martin and Tom Lasorda."

Kuhn acknowledged that the princely salaries, automatically turning players into superstars, may have contributed to the surge of new interest, but he gave much of the credit for the game's attendance spiral to the emergence of Mark "The Bird" Fidrych.

Fidrych is the flighty Detroit pitcher who burst on the scene like a thunderclap as a raw, uninhibited rookie in 1976 and mesmerized fans with his mound antics and winning ways. He talked to the ball, did gardening around the mound and won baseball games.

It was on a nationally televised game in Detroit June 28, 1976 that "The Bird" dazzled the Yankees 5-1. Thousands remained in the stands, cheering wildly until Fidrych came out to take a bow. Fidrych continued to fill ball parks until suffering an arm injury last season.

"Fidrych popularized the curtain call in baseball," said Kuhn. "Now it's become a baseball tradition."

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
Alex Belcourt's 40-foot slapshot in overtime gave Denver a 4-3 victory over Minnesota-Duluth Friday night and kept the Pioneers in sole possession of first place in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association.

John Rothstein's second goal of the night gave the Bulldogs a 4-2 lead midway through the third period, but Perry Schnarr tied the game for Denver with just 31 seconds left in regulation time.

Denver won its eighth straight game after an opening-game loss to Michigan and is one game in front of defending NCAA champion Wisconsin.

In other WCHA games Friday, Wisconsin defeated Minnesota 4-1, Michigan Tech blanked North Dakota 7-0, Notre Dame edged Michigan State 4-3 and Colorado College whipped Michigan 5-2.

Wisconsin got two power-play goals from sophomore center Mark Johnson as the Badgers dealt Minnesota its third straight loss. Freshman Scott Lacy added another goal and one assist for Wisconsin, 7-2.

Colorado, 5-4, handed third-place Michigan its third loss of the season behind a three-goal outburst in the second period. The surge gave the Tigers a 3-1 lead en route to their victory.

Mike Knoke and Rick Prucht each scored one goal and had two assists to lead Colorado.

Notre Dame, 1-8, picked up its initial win of the year by beating Michigan State, now 48. Terry Fairbairn scored the winning goal at 12:56 of the third period.

Both teams scored twice in the first period and Fairbairn's goal gave the Irish a 4-2 lead. Russ Welch added a goal for the Spartans in the final minute.

Winger Gordy Salt got three goals to power Michigan Tech over North Dakota. He got two in the first period as the Huskies built a 4-0 lead.

Dana Decker added two goals for Tech and Greg Hay and Rodger May also clipped in with one apiece.

Tech is 5-4 in WCHA play. North Dakota dropped to 3-6.

All teams will be in action again tonight for the second game of the series.

Indian Fishing Controversy May Continue For Years

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — It could take several more years to resolve a 5-year-old Indian fishing controversy whose first phase now is slated to go to trial in Marquette Feb. 27.

A spokesman for U.S. District Judge Noel Fox said Friday the trial at Marquette may last up to three weeks. An attorney for one of two Upper Peninsula Indian tribes filing the suit said it might be two or three years more before its second phase is heard.

The case, filed in 1972, involves claims by the Bay Mills Indians, the Sault Ste. Marie Chippewas and the federal government against the state of Michigan over fishing rights supposedly guaranteed by an 1836 treaty.

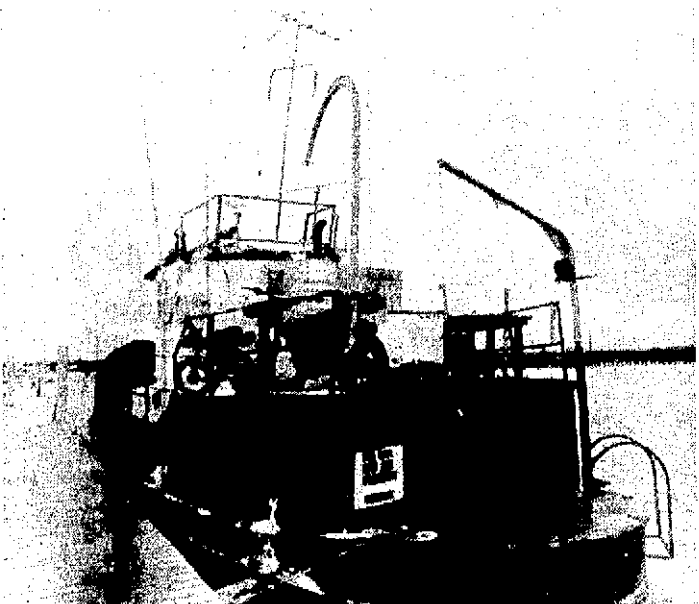

Under that treaty, the Ottawa and Chippewa tribes turned over to the federal government the eastern half of the Upper Peninsula and a huge swath of the Lower Peninsula from Grand Rapids to Alpena.

In return, the tribes claim they kept the right to fish in areas of the Great Lakes adjoining the lands they ceded to the government.

But the state contends the treaty provided a cutoff date on the fishing rights and that date passed long ago.

If Fox rules in favor of the tribes on the treaty argument, a second phase of the case would go to trial. In the second phase, the court would try to determine whether the state may limit fishing by Indians in any way.

Boat Owner Denies Aiding Pot Smugglers Evade Police

MIAMI (AP) — The owner of a former Coast Guard buoy tender denies a congressman's charge that the ship spies on law enforcement vessels in order to help marijuana smugglers evade capture.

"It's disgusting," Gary Ruchle said in Mount Clemens, Mich. after Rep. Mario Biaggi disclosed a report about Ruchle's 52-foot ship, The Owl and the Pussycat.

Ruchle said law enforcement agents "have spent millions following me from port to port in their frantic search for the weed."

Citing a report by the staff of a House subcommittee on Coast Guard navigation, the New York congressman said here Wednesday that the ship has been under federal surveillance in the Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico since 1972.

"The report to us is that this vessel carries equipment superior to that used by the Coast Guard and is assisting in the illegal traffic of drugs," said Biaggi, a Democrat.

Biaggi's committee, which held hearings here Wednesday, was told that customs agents boarded the ship in Little Creek, Va., last year and found 13 antenna along the superstructure. Several electric generators and a small cache of weapons were also reported aboard.

"I haven't been boarded just one time," Ruchle said in a telephone interview from his father's home in Mount Clemens. "I've been boarded 23 times — by the DEA, the FBI, Customs, local and state police, everybody — and they've never found anything."

Ruchle said the antenna were merely used for navigation equipment, television and AM-FM radios on which he and his guests listen to music.

He said the boat was docked at Charleston, S.C., and that anyone who wanted to see it was welcome.

Letter On Lincoln Rare Find

By DANIEL Q. RANEY

Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — A stack of letters donated to the Massachusetts Historical Society includes a letter that one historian calls the most complete account of the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln.

The faint, yellowed letter was written two days after Lincoln's death by a War Department employee who carried the mortally wounded president out of Ford's Theatre.

The envelope contained a fragment of linen described as a towel soaked with the blood of the dying president.

"It's a great thrill to go through a group of letters and find something like this among the mundane," said Louis L. Tucker, director of the historical society. "It produces a quickening of the heartbeat."

The letter describes the pandemonium in the theater after the shooting, the hysterics of Lincoln's wife and the grief of cabinet members who stood by his bedside as Lincoln died.

Lincoln was shot by John Wilkes Booth as he watched a performance of "Our American Cousin" in Ford's Theatre in Washington on April 14, 1865.

The newly discovered letter was written by Augustus Clark to his uncle, Stephen M. Allen, who lived in Woburn, Mass.

Gov't Probing Detroit Dieters' Deaths

DETROIT (AP) — The deaths of two Detroit residents who were on liquid protein diets are being investigated by federal agencies. The diet may be a factor in the deaths as well as those of 18 other persons who used the diet supplement, according to the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

The CDC and the Food and Drug Administration are conducting the joint probe. Dr. Harold Sours of the CDC staff said 26 deaths were first linked to the diet, but researchers established that six had been caused by other factors.

Some medical authorities caution that only obese persons should consider the liquid protein diet, and then only if they are closely supervised by a doctor. Sours said one problem with the liquid protein could be it does not provide all the nutrients a person needs.

"It is quite conceivable that these people were depriving themselves of some essential nutrient and we may end up finding starvation was the cause of death, although it would be a very different kind of starvation than that associated with Bangladesh or concentration camps," Sours said.

Farmers At Saline May Join Strike

SALINE, Mich. (AP) — Some 200 farmers showed up Friday to hear a panel of speakers urged support for a possible nationwide strike to underscore demands for higher prices for farm goods.

Observers said about half of the those in the audience raised their hands when one of the speakers asked if they would take part in the strike, sponsored by a group calling itself the American Agriculture Movement.

Among the steps proposed for the strike were withholding of farm products from the market and a refusal to buy any more mechanical equipment, such as tractors.

Kenwood Drayton of Coldwater, who outlined the plan, said American farm products are selling at 65 percent of what they should be priced.

As a result, he said, 25 percent of the farmers in the nine-state Midwest region are being forced to sell their farms or refinance current loans to keep them going.

"The family farm is facing extinction," Drayton said. "The current system by which grain is marketed is based on

Meeting Slated On Cook Unit 2 Reactor License

The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission has announced it will hold a public meeting next Saturday on the application by Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. for a license to operate its Unit 2 reactor at Donald C. Cook power plant in Bridgeport. The meeting is to begin at 8:30 a.m., at the St. Joseph Holiday Inn, the NRC announcement said.

A subcommittee of the NRC's Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards will conduct the independent, technical review of safety considerations related to nuclear facilities, the NRC said. The NRC said that people wishing to submit statements may do so by providing 15 reproducible copies to the subcommittee at the beginning of the meeting or may request an opportunity to make an oral statement related to agenda items to the subcommittee chairman.

I&M is seeking an operating license for its Unit 2, a 1,100-megawatt nuclear-powered generator. The plant's Unit 1 has been out of operation this past week because the NRC ordered testing and replacement of some electrical connectors that lead to safety systems at the plant. I&M officials said they hope to have the parts replaced and Unit 1 back in operation early next week.

Nader Group Asks Halt Of N-Plant Construction

By MERRILL HARTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Ralph Nader organization, citing newly obtained CIA documents on an alleged nuclear accident in the Soviet Union, says U.S. nuclear plant construction should be stopped until safety can be studied further.

The Critical Mass Energy Project made public Friday a series of documents dealing with the incident, which occurred in the southern Ural Mountains in 1958.

The group said the documents lent new credence to earlier unsubstantiated accounts of the incident, which reportedly killed scores of people and exposed thousands to radiation.

Robert Pollock, the project director, said the documents should "force this nation to pause and reflect on decisions being made today to accelerate the expansion of nuclear power in this country."

He said Congress should impose a moratorium on nuclear plant construction in the United States until study has determined that this country's nuclear power program is safe.

A bill calling for such a moratorium is pending in Congress.

The CIA released the documents as a result of a suit the group brought under the Freedom of Information Act.

Pollock said it was "incredible that the U.S. government decided to suppress information about accidents that related to nuclear power systems in other countries for over 20 years."

The CIA released only 14 of 20 documents the Nader group had sought. The other 15 and portions of the released 14 were withheld for national security reasons, Pollock said his organization will try to force the agency to release the material still being kept secret.

CIA officials declined to comment on the withholding of the documents, which date to May 1958.

"We've released the documents as required by law, and for now ... they'll have to stand on their own two feet," an agency spokesman said.

In the documents, CIA informants painted a grim picture of the apparent accident at Kyshtyn, a rural town on the Asian side of the Ural Mountains not far from the industrial center of Chelyabinsk. Apparently, however, none witnessed the incident first-hand.

The documents say an apparent nuclear explosion killed scores of Kyshtyn townspeople and turned a 60-square-mile area into a "vast nothing."

The documents did not make it clear whether the incident involved a nuclear power plant or a nuclear waste storage site. Also unanswered was the question of whether the blast involved a military or civilian complex.

A CIA document written last March about the Kyshtyn incident said:

"About 100 kilometers from Sverdlovsk (about 100 miles north of Kyshtyn), we crossed a strange, uninhabited and unfarmed area. Highway signs along the way warned drivers not to stop for the next 20 to 30 kilometers because of radiation.

"The land was empty. There were no villages, no towns, no people, no cultivated land; only the chimneys of destroyed houses remained."

The Nader group said the Soviet Union had concentrated a number of nuclear reactors in the region, adding that the CIA first learned of the incident in a teletype report received May 23, 1958.

It said the released agency files noted "that various Soviet employees and visitors in the Brussels (World) Fair have stated independently but consistently that the occurrence of an accidental atomic explosion during the spring of 1958 was widely known throughout the Soviet Union."

"Rumors are common that many people were killed, however, the generally accepted version is that only several score died," the teletype report said.

Pollock cited a February 1961 document indicating it was general knowledge that there was an abnormally high incidence of cancer in the Chelyabinsk area.

Malnutrition Kills Boy; Mom Charged

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A 6-year-old boy who died of malnutrition was one of six children who apparently were fed little more than salt water in what police say may have been part of a religious rite to ward off demons.

Daniel Bush weighed only 35 pounds, 20 to 25 pounds underweight, said the physician who performed the autopsy Friday.

"Really, he looked like a kite, all skin and bone," said Dr. Josefin Aguilan. "He was very much undernourished."

The youngster's mother, Trula Bush, 35, and Willa Mayes, 40, were to appear at a preliminary hearing in Municipal Court today. Mrs. Bush was held on three counts

RESCUED: Firefighters rescued about 15 people, as fire swept the Elm Apartments on Henry at Cass, in downtown Detroit Friday. There were no serious injuries as most of the elderly people were removed by ladder from the fourth and fifth story windows. "I was asleep (at about 9 a.m.) when the fire started," said Mrs. Genevieve Lancy, 59, (left). "I couldn't go down the steps because of the fire. I'm terrified of heights, but the beautiful young fireman (Mark Rebrovick) carried me. He also saved my two cats. I'd have felt terrible if anything happened to Snoopy and Frisky." (AP Laserphoto) of neglect and involuntary manslaughter and Mrs. Mayes on three neglect charges. Bond for each was set at $15,000.

The other five children, a brother and sister of the dead boy and three of Mrs. Mayes' grandchildren, were hospitalized Friday, all suffering malnutrition.

William Bush, 8, and Katherine Bush, 7, were listed in critical condition.

Billy Williams, 8; Michael Collier, 7, and Sabrina Collier, 5, were reported in good condition.

Ann Richardson, director of public relations at Wishard Memorial Hospital, said the salt water was intended to drive out evil spirits, but police said they were unable to confirm that.

Authorities said the women and children lived in the basement of a small one-story frame home. The first floor was rented to others, they said.

Several neighbors reported they considered the place off limits, recalling nocturnal chanting coming from the basement.

"She told me she had supernatural power. She was really weird," a neighbor said after police arrested Mrs. Mayes. He said Mrs. Mayes told him "she could look someone right in the eye and put the whammy on him."

Authorities said both women were members of St. Jude Temple of Spiritual Truth, housed in a structure they described as an old home, partially boarded up with paper facsimiles of stained glass in some of the windows.

Another neighbor, also asking not to be identified, said she saw Mrs. Mayes "after I saw her whip those children ... work them to death. She told me she was a minister but then vowed to knife some man who didn't like her gospel singing."

Neighbors said two men also lived in the house and one "wore a woman's wig part of the time."

Police detective Joseph Lackey said Daniel probably had been fed the salt solution for at least a month before his mother called an ambulance early Friday, reporting her son "didn't look too good."

Lackey said when the other children were taken to the hospital one saw a nurse with a yellow name tag clipped to her uniform and hid in fear under hospital bedclothes.

Asked what frightened him, he said, "Mother told us that anyone who wore yellow was full of demons," Lackey related.

When Daniel was pronounced dead, Mrs. Bush protested, "Dan isn't dead. He's pulled this before. All you have to do is put him in a room by himself and he'll come out of it," the detective said.

He also said while the women waited at the hospital, before their arrests, Mrs. Mayes kept up a constant chanting and Mrs. Bush tapped her feet and hands to the beat of the singing.

Mrs. Bush contended her son was alive when the ambulance arrived about 3 a.m. and accused hospital physicians of killing him. She said she knew they were responsible "because Jesus told me so," authorities said.

The autopsy showed the boy had received no solid food for at least a day, Aguilan said.

A hospital spokesman also said the autopsy disclosed the "highest concentration of salt in the bloodstream we've ever seen."

Police said neighbors had reported possible cases of child abuse at the home, but Aguilan said the autopsy showed no evidence of physical abuse.

Portage To Rewrite Code Of Conduct

PORTAGE, Mich. (AP) — The Portage School Board has agreed to rewrite a personal conduct code under which three students were dropped from the high school swimming team for attending a party where drinking was going on. In turn, the swimmers' parents Wednesday withdrew a lawsuit under which they gained an order in Kalamazoo Circuit Court last February blocking the board's action. The suit contended the nondrinking rule was not equally enforced among the students. The parents also charged that the school board exceeded its authority, that the code was too broad and too unclear to be properly enforced. In the settlement, the board agreed to rework the conduct code of which the drinking rule is a part. A demand for $10,000 in damages was withdrawn early in the negotiations.

OSHA Raps Ford Motor

DETROIT (AP) — For the second time in 15 months, the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration has cited Ford Motor Co. in a fatal accident that was not investigated by Michigan's own safety agency. The most recent victim was Leonard Leath, 59, who died of an infection Sept. 20, three weeks after his right leg was crushed in an accident at Ford's Rouge complex. The accident occurred when an electrician working on an overhead crane pushed an unmarked lever the wrong way, plunging Leath's leg between the crane and a steel column. Ford officials said they notified the Michigan Occupational Safety and Health Administration of the accident and the death. The federal agency stepped in when the state agency said it would not conduct an inquiry. Ford was fined $350 and ordered to put permanent labels on crane levers to avoid recurrence of the type of accident that resulted in Leath's death. Marvin Walker, director of the state Bureau of Safety and Regulations, said the state agency decided not to investigate because a coroner's report listed infection as the cause of Leath's death. By the time Leath died, Walker said, the scene of the accident had been changed and, "We like to get to the accident scene at once."

Tool And Die Maker Is $107,000 Winner

DETROIT (AP) — A retired tool and die maker who will be 66 next month won the $107,000 top prize in the Michigan Lottery's Michigan Friday night. Gilbert Leach of Berkey says he wants to spend part of his prize money traveling across the United States. He retired recently after working for 35 years at Lamma Inc. of Oak Park.

Leach will return next week for another chance to pile up more prizes. He replaces Julia Bezan, who failed to increase her winnings Friday night from two previous appearances in the Michigan Lottery.

Other winners Friday night: Helene Verbrugge, 69, of St. Clair Shores, $14,000; Ronald Thompson, 27, of Saginaw, $10,000; Joe Duhon, 55, of Monroe, $8,000; Wenden-Nickels Lottery Club of Warren, $8,000; the estate of Virginia Marretta, represented by Rose Cicharski, $7,000.

great-grandchildren? After all, they're entitled, also, to the same scenic wonders that we have had all our lives.)

We folks around here take this lovely environment for granted. Just go out west and see the barren rocky hills and canyons, our greenery, woods and hills, our pleasant all year climate.

Think of it — those hills took thousands of years to make. It will take only a few years to level them! Once they are gone, they are gone forever. This scenic beauty is one of the reasons why folks travel to the Bridgman area in the first place during the summer (bringing in lots of business to local tradesmen.) After they are gone, what then? Wouldn't some of these tourists find other, lovelier areas to spend their money in? You can bet your boots that a lot of them will.

There are so few places left where young folks can climb hills and hike through the dunes and wooded areas. To say nothing about the wildlife and plant life that would be affected. Also, think of the change in climate that would be inevitable if all these hills are leveled. Winds of gale force, snow, sleet — this would all sweep across Red Arrow Highway in the winter. Sand would blow in the summer. The protection of the hills in the cyclone season would not be there.

So, keep up the good work, all you citizens joining the Hope for the Dunes project. And don't forget to come to the big bazaar, rummage and bake sale at the local auction barn, starting at 10 o'clock, Saturday, December 3.

FIVE REASONS TO KEEP MERCY HEART UNIT

Editor,
Enclosed is a copy of the letter I have written to Robert O. Stafford, president, board of trustees, Southwest Michigan Health Systems Agency, 11224 Lovers Lane, Kalamazoo, Mich. Mary White
3101 River Road
Sodus

Dear Mr. Stafford,
I write this letter with great concern for the Open Heart Surgery Unit at Mercy Hospital. For all the patients who need this unit and their families, for the following reasons:

1. Unnecessary to move the unit when it is already established and has been here for five years.

2. To the patient loss of a trusted friend their doctor when they know and trust, only to find themselves with a strange doctor in a strange hospital. This alone can be a cause of trauma to a seriously ill patient. Trauma can cause stress and can hinder convalescence and prolong the hospital stay.

3. Inconvenience to families having to travel too far to be near their loved ones.

4. Added expense to patient many of whom are elderly and may not own a car or perhaps their spouse don't drive. The extra cost of room and meals during a hospital stay can be very expensive.

5. Added expense of hospital care. The fees at Borgess are quite a bit more than Mercy. I would say probably double. This factor alone nullifies one of the reasons the S.M.H.S.A. has given for wanting to move the unit and I quote from one of the articles printed in the Herald-Palladium "the recommendation was made as a means of limiting the high cost of medical care and duplicative services."

The present heart team has done a remarkable job. There have been more than 200 cases done in the past two years with a low mortality rate. In fact the record is as good or better than most of the larger hospitals. The heart team starting with the doctors, nurses, technicians, etc., in the operating room, then moving to our intensive care unit and on to the floor are all dedicated people who care.

Please put yourself in a patient's place. From the moment of the first pain, pressure, stress or for whatever reason the interruption of the heart to function properly. Would you want to be snatched away from your family, your physician and taken to a strange place where you know no one.

Personally, I think this is a political thought and move and it should be left up to the people and health planners in their own community to decide for themselves.

I have been reading the letters of former heart surgery patients. Listen to them. They have been there. They know.

Mary White

P.S. After attending last night's public hearing on the Open Heart Unit at Mercy Hospital, I found out I am not the only one who shares these views. Open testimony from a number of patients who have had surgery there spoke for itself. I was appalled at the intended closing of the O.H. Unit at Berrien General Hospital. Have any of you on the committee ever worked in an O.H. unit. I have, and believe you my babies do not want to ride 60 miles to be born. They come when they are ready and not the best doctor in the world can tell you the exact minute a child will be born. Some women it is true have long labors, but I would say most have fairly short labor. I thought the purpose of health units was to save lives in all areas be it broken bones, gall bladders, kidney operations, heart surgery, delivering a baby or any of the many other categories. I have not covered, but I think from what I heard last night the whole program needs to be reconsidered and put before the public.

HE SAYS BLACK AFRICANS NOT READY

Editor,
First, we had civil rights as the national goal, but now that we are approaching that, we have raised our sights and strive for human rights. And not only in our own country, but all over the world. And most nations represented in the U.N. have fallen in step, or even run ahead in their condemnation of the Union of South Africa.

How solid is our position in clamoring for self-determination of the black majority there? We, who slaughtered the Indians here and made them a minority. We, who imported slaves from Africa and finally freed them a century ago, but kept them more or less suppressed until a decade ago. What basis have we to support sanctions against the African government?

In reality, would it be wise to install a "one man, one vote" system there, when a look at the other former colonies makes it clear that the inhabitants, with few exceptions, are unable to rule themselves at this time and have fallen under the heel of a local dictator?

The process of self-development to a point of competent, responsible self-government may take several generations. No doubt some individuals can rise quicker through favorable circumstances, but a competent leader alone isn't enough to turn a well-run colony into a well-run nation. As long as the average citizen remains primitive, the population will fall victim to a dictator.

To insist on human rights and civil rights for South Africa right now, or even in a few years, would be as foolish as to insist here that our school children take over the schools, from kindergarten on, instead of depending on the teachers and school administration.

The goal may be admirable but the timetable invites disaster for the black majority in South Africa. Do we really want them another Idi Amin?

CARDIAC UNIT NEEDED HERE

Editor,
Monday night I attended a public hearing mainly concerned with the question of retaining the cardiac unit at Mercy Hospital.

It was quite apparent that the community at large was overwhelmingly in favor of continuing the services provided there.

The people responsible for wanting to terminate the heart program act as though it were a malignancy to be removed, while in reality it is a valuable asset to the people of Berrien County. Many former surgery patients expressed their feeling of the hardships that would be placed on them and their families by having to find the means to commute a long distance. This, of course, is understandable but my main point is that even if they did have to travel long distances they could not possibly find a better cardiac team than at Mercy Hospital.

Dr. Just's record speaks for itself. His success rate is one of the highest in the nation. He also has the most dedicated and competent team available and the best surgeon in the world could not perform his best without the aid of such co-workers.

I can speak from personal experience on this matter because my husband is on the cardiac team. He is willing to drive 20 miles any time of the day or night to apply his special skills for the people who need them. He has genuine concern for every patient and always gives his best as do all members of the team.

I can only hope the board will come to their senses and vote to retain these valuable and needed services.

SADAT JOURNEY MORE IMPORTANT

Editor,
In response to Mr. Morton's letter I am shocked. Have we as a nation chosen to be so isolated in our own secure borders that we do not have concern and compassion for our fellowman?

I, as well as many Americans feel, that history and positive history of that, was taking place over last weekend with the Sadat Israel journey. Here at last was a definite overture between peoples who have had a longer and more serious battle than either Michigan or Ohio State has had or will ever know.

If, and I trust to God it will, this trip opens the door in serious fruitful negotiations by all the parties involved in this war, then it will win more points per se than any and all football contests I can think of.

True Mr. Morton has a right to expect punctual sports coverage of important events such as the Big 10 championship but I trust that he remembers that wars are not so carefully fought so as to bring the peace and prospects of it to you as a three-minute clip on the 6 o'clock news.

In this Thanksgiving season let us give thanks to our maker that no American has to fight or die in some foreign country and that the peoples of the middle east can enjoy this in the years to come.

ABORTION FOES NOTE PARENTAL OPTIONS

Editor,
The passage of H.B. 4425 by the Michigan Legislature on Nov. 9, 1977, authorizing local school districts to teach contraceptive birth control in the public schools, culminated a triumphant campaign wage in concert by all segments of the media. The winsome refrain was that dissemination of birth control information would cure teenage pregnancy and venereal disease.

Michigan Citizens for Life, having membership in many denominations, takes no stand on birth control and contraceptives. However, it is committed to a firm stand against abortion. There is no way for H.B. 4425 to operate with abortion kept a secret. You cannot muzzle a teacher in her own classroom nor effectively monitor all classes. Either thought is repugnant.

Sen. John Wellborn introduced an amendment to H.R. 4425 that would make fetology a required course in presenting the subject of contraceptive birth control.

M.C.L. supported that move because without the subject of fetology being taught in conjunction with birth control, the bill is a fragmented educational requirement. To deal with the subject that pertains to preventing a pregnancy without saying what a pregnancy is — the dwelling of one human being within another — is being dishonest with young people and giving inadequate information about their sexuality.

This amendment lost by one vote in the Senate; two in the House. Therefore, the bill now reads that they "may" teach fetology, but it will not be automatically included when contraceptive birth control methods are taught.

Parents, however, do have some options. The bill states:

"Sec. 1507. (3) A pupil shall not be enrolled in a class in which the subjects of family planning or reproductive health are discussed unless the pupil's parent or guardian is notified in advance of the course and the content of the course and is given a prior opportunity to review the materials to be used in the course."

We hope parents will carefully review the material and protest vehemently if abortion is included in any of the literature.

(4) Upon the written request of a pupil or the pupil's parent or guardian, a pupil shall be excused without penalty or loss of academic credit from attending the class described in Subsection (1).

(5) A school district shall not offer this instruction unless an advisory board is established by the district board to periodically review the materials and methods of instruction used, and to make recommendations to the district regarding changes in the materials or methods. The advisory board shall consist of parents having children attending the district's schools, pupils in the district's schools, educators, (local pastors, ministers or rabbis), and community health professionals."

We encourage parents to become actively involved in the advisory boards.

Michigan Citizens for Life, in addition to being firmly opposed to abortion, is equally committed to strengthening the family. We are particularly outraged at the July 1, 1976 Supreme Court decision which stated that minors may obtain an abortion without parental consent (as well as denying fathers' rights), and permits distribution of birth control devices to minors without parental knowledge.

Teenage pregnancies most often result from an absence of love. Coming from families where there is no communication, many young people engage in early sexual intercourse as a search for love and a human relationship.

When teenage sexuality is confronted, the all-purpose mechanistic solution to suppress its results is sought rather than an attempt to seek its causes. Giving a teenage girl the pill will not strengthen her willpower or solve her social or emotional problems.

Society's example persists in advertising that sexual relations outside of marriage are good. The "pied piper" leads the young down the path of sexual permissiveness while parents stand by in anguish, letting the state take over. Perhaps the young will sense this specious offering. Surely, there is more to adolescence than the pill, pregnancy, VD and abortion.

Until H.B. 4425, Michigan and Louisiana were the only states where birth control was not taught in the schools. Statistics show that the number of teenage pregnancies did not soar above that of other states, as it should have if arguments for H.B. 4425 were correct.

Where sex education is provided without values being taught, teenage pregnancy will continue to exist. No one is saying to the teenagers today that for their own good and the good of society, it is not wise for them to have sexual intercourse at an early age.

If we do not involve our teenagers in moral discourse, if we do not strengthen families, if we can do no more than propose technological solutions to an issue that concerns human life, what does this say about us?

STORMY PAST AND FUTURE HOPES

THE WARNING SIGNS

HOW TO REWARD YOURSELF FOR POSITIVE BEHAVIOR

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR CAROL BURNETT

When you and your husband argue, what's it about? — H.M., Danville, Va.

● The kids. They get their own way with me more than with their dad. Another way in which we clash is that Joe has endless patience, and I don't. I can't wait. Everything must be done immediately. If I give Joe a chore to do and he takes his own sweet time, I get mad because I don't know what's holding up the work and what's happening.

FOR RAY MARSHALL, Secretary of Labor

● I do not believe that moonlighting bears much relationship to unemployment: Hours and earnings are lower than the jobless desire or expect; secondary jobs utilize skills and experience markedly different from those of the unemployed; and a large proportion of secondary jobs are "created" by the workers themselves, such as self-employed farmers, professionals or business operators.

FOR BOBBY LAMM, musician with the rock group, Chicago

What do you remember most about your recent European trip? — R.C., Klamath Falls, Ore.

● Two things. While we were in Italy, a few of our trunks got lost and we had to play some dates in regular street clothes. The other much more disturbing incident was playing a concert at the Nuremberg Stadium in Germany built by Adolf Hitler for his bullies. It wasn't pleasant to perform at a place associated with one of the biggest murderers and worst dictators history has known.

FOR JANET GUTHRIE, first woman to race in the Indianapolis 500

Is the women's rights movement responsible for where you are today? — K.R., Huron, S.D.

● Of course. Had it not been for it I wouldn't have had the chance to drive championship cars. Nevertheless, I'm not a "women's libber" — even though I'm grateful — because I'm not a political person. Politics is bad for racing — just like an oil patch on the track.

FOR KAREN CARPENTER, singer

Have you and your brother Richard increased your group? Seems there are more voices on your records. — Stan Castleberry, Lufkin, Texas

● You're right in that there are other voices in addition to Richard's and mine, but we haven't increased our twosome. We have a group of seven musician-singers who travel and record with us. We need those additional voices to give us better balance, a richer sound and to elaborate on the harmonies.

FOR JACK CARTER, comedian

What do you do if another comedian steals your jokes? — T.M., Tupelo, Miss.

● I burn up, of course, but try not to show it because that makes the thief do it all the more. On the whole, it's hard to steal from me because my routine is not set patter — it's all personal, ad-lib stuff. However, I was once at a Don Rickles roast, and right before my very eyes, another comedian stood up and used some of my jokes.

FOR JAMES A. CONLON, director, U.S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing

Why don't we have Braille currency, as they do in Holland? — Mrs. Alfred C. Herz, New London, N.H.

● We've made extensive investigations into Braille-type markings on U.S. currency and even printed experimental notes with raised markings which were examined by blind persons. Results confirm that such currency is not of particular value to most blind people due to the rapid wear of the raised markings and to the fact that most of the blind lack the sensitivity of touch required to distinguish markings.

FOR JULIE SOMMARS, star of Herbie Goes to Monte Carlo

Do people go crazy when they recognize you? — L.A., Sacramento, Calif.

● I'll answer that with this story: The day after I signed autographs at a tire-impromptu ceremony at Grauman's Chinese Theatre, immortalizing Herbie (The Love Bug), I was with my 5-year-old. She spotted some kids and yelled to them: "This is my mom, star of Herbie Goes to Monte Carlo. Do you want her autograph?" They held a conference and decided it would do no harm to get my autograph — which I gave them.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

What is Esther Williams doing now? — M.R., Rye, N.Y.

● Living a quiet life in Beverly Hills with her husband Fernando Lamas. (They met when they made the movie Dangerous When Wet. He was the first of her leading men who knew how to swim.) Esther, 54, is a bit on the plump side and hasn't made a film since the late 1950's. She's a private person and doesn't go out often to public places. When she does, she takes with her a batch of cards to hand out when asked the inevitable question, Message on the card: "Yes, I Still Swim."

FOR RUSSELL RHODES, author of The Sixx Complex

I think there's something effeminate about a well-coiffed man. Do you think women prefer this type to the rugged, disheveled kind? — J.T., Bluefield, W. Va.

● If a man is effectively manicured and coiffed, no one will really notice because his nails and hair won't attract undue attention. Instead, they'll contribute to an overall appearance of naturalness and good looks. There's nothing effeminate about that. Concerning preferences, research shows that while women may fantasize a bit over the caveman type, they prefer trim, well-groomed bodies and minds to settle down with.

PRO AND CON

Should Immigration To The U.S. Be Curtailed To Protect Jobs?

PRO Melanie Wirken, Immigration Project, Zero Population Growth
The inadequate enforcement of U.S. immigration laws has allowed hundreds of thousands of immigrants annually to enter the country illegally in search of jobs. The precise effect of illegal immigration on domestic unemployment is unknown, but certain assumptions appear reasonable. Workers willing to work for less and under inferior conditions can be expected to 1) compete with American workers, 2) hold down wage rates and 3) delay an upgrading of work conditions. Rather than neglecting the effect of immigration on unemployment, resources and population growth, U.S. immigration policy must be reformed within this broader context.

CON Sen. Edward Kennedy (D.-Mass.)

Most legal immigrants come here to be reunited with their families. The annual influx is very small — less than a quarter of 1 percent of our population, and less than 50 percent of the new arrivals seek jobs. Such numbers have little impact on the country's vast labor market. If anything, immigration today is an economic good as it has been in the past. Some immigrants are investors. Some bring needed special skills. All are consumers. These factors help create jobs and strengthen our economy. However, illegal immigration does depress certain sectors of the economy. Something more must be done to resolve this serious problem.

RICHARD BURTON TALKS ABOUT HIS STORMY PAST AND FUTURE HOPES

For years his personal life was a shambles and most of his work, he says, was "rubbish," but his performance in Equus is a resounding signal that a great actor is back.

By Patricia Baum

Wherever Richard Burton goes, the waters still part. Even in the most elegant and conservative Beverly Hills hotel, long used to hosting superstars and royalty, heads turn, eyes ogle and both classy guests and blasé staff buzz with excitement. "His eyes are so green," gushes an elevator girl. "He's still so handsome," exclaims another.

After spending some time with Richard Burton, one soon understands the reasons for all the attention. The imposing figure, strong face and resonant voice that made him a matinee idol are all marvelously intact after 52 years. But more important, a forceful, personal magnetism gives Burton a commanding presence and makes the very air about him crackle with electricity. At the same time, however, beneath the impressive surface, Burton is sensitive and as fallible as the rest of us.

He admits, for instance, that he suffers from self-doubt. Until his recent stage comeback in Equus, in which he portrays a psychiatrist treating a stable boy who has blinded six horses, he feared he had lost his ability to hold the attention of an audience. Before he stepped onto the Broadway stage that first night, after an absence of some 12 years, he recalls with a shudder, "I was more scared than in my entire life. I was trembling and perspiring all over. But the minute I walked out onstage, I knew I still had the power and breathed a secret sigh of relief."

In fact, Burton considers Equus a major turning point in his life. It was about that time that he finally ended the tempestuous marriage to Liz Taylor and settled into a less flamboyant existence with a new wife, former model Susan Hunt (see cover). His success in the play (he repeats his role to critical acclaim in the new film based on the play) prompted him to focus more on the theater.

Burton never was your typical struggling young actor. Although the son of a poor Welsh coal miner, his unique gifts — the deep voice, dynamic vigor and immense authority — brought quick success on the London and New York stage and resounding praise from critics. Burton, it was said, was the dramatic heir to Laurence Olivier, destined to become the greatest actor in the English-speaking world. But after marrying Elizabeth Taylor in 1964, he was bitterly accused of squandering his talent and swapping theatrical respect for quick movie celebrity and the good life. His stage work dwindled as his film fees zoomed to $1 million per picture. Although a few movies, such as The Spy Who Came in from the Cold and Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?, matched his magnificent abilities, the joint ventures with Liz for the most part were second-rate.

For all his commanding manner, Burton recalls the criticism with obvious pain. "I was so taken aback by it at first," he confesses, "that my acting was not up to par. Finally, I had to stop reading about myself altogether." In fact, for more than a decade, he claims, he has not seen any articles about himself, and he bristles still in defending his career: "Yes, I've made some splendidly monstrous films, but everyone must do some rubbish. I needed films to increase my scope. The stage can be very inhibiting."

How does he feel about the enormous amounts of money he's made? By his own estimate, he's taken in more than $20 million over the years. "I used to be horrified," he says, "by the immorality of receiving an absolutely huge amount for an absurd bit of work. But I've come to believe that it's not so unfair. I've given large sums to charity. And I've paid a high personal price in the loss of privacy."

He seems to have resigned himself, however, to accepting this attention. He had hoped that with Susan he could at last enjoy a real personal life. But he now knows that is not possible because the public relentlessly continues to stalk him.

"The commotion over me was a strain on our marriage at first," he says. "Elizabeth, having been a star since childhood, understood it, but Susan didn't, and she thought I was some kind of freak."

Even more troublesome is the constant threat of danger, for his high living and relationships with beautiful women have incited much envy and hatred. "My worst fears," he explains gloomily, "have been the kidnapping of my children [two by first wife Sybil and Liz's four, whom he looks on as his own] and having acid thrown in my face." Sometime ago, onstage in Toronto, he was convinced the latter would really occur. "I was standing in front of the footlights about to deliver a curtain speech," he says dramatically, "and this woman charged up the aisle with a cup in her hand. I thought, Oh, my God, here it comes. But it turned out all she wanted was my autograph."

Then, during the Equus run in New York, he was threatened with assassination. Had it happened — despite the heavy security — Burton, forever the thespian, had his death line all planned: "I would have said, 'It is the hazard of my profession.' Very Elizabethan, was it not?"

Photos by United Artists

In Equus, Peter Firth plays a disturbed young man guilty of a bizarre and outrageous crime. Burton portrays his psychiatrist in this film version of the play.

Colin Blakely (right) plays the boy's father, a respected middle-class man. Joan Plowright plays his mother, a well-intentioned woman who fails to understand the emotional problems that are wracking her son.

Burton's struggle for safety and privacy has forced him over the years into unwanted isolation. He argues convincingly that his fame and wealth, instead of making him free, have placed "a bar on my window. Even now I rarely attend parties. When I'm not working I'll go for months seeing just my family and staying at my homes in Switzerland and Antigua. I am no longer able to relate to ordinary people. Even if I try to be very natural with them, they can't be with me. Happily my sanity is saved by my many brothers and sisters who couldn't care less how famous I am."

Part of the problem with his marriage to Elizabeth Taylor, Burton now concedes, was his heavy drinking. "I had a glass in my hand from the time I arose to the time I went to bed," he says. "I was fairly sloshed for several years and had a perpetual hangover."

The constant boozing not only infuriated Liz but also affected his work: "My lines became slurred and my timing was off." The booze threatened his very life, too, and when a physical exam revealed an enlarged liver and doctors gave him two weeks to live, he swore off alcohol except for an occasional drink at family celebrations.

Once sobered up, Burton reconciled with Liz and they remarried. But, after some months, they divorced again because, according to Burton, "we finally realized that we both have intensely forceful personalities that clash and that it's impossible to live together." Still, Burton is clearly fond of his former wife. "Thirteen years is a long time," he says softly. "Elizabeth and I speak often, and I would be happy to work with her again."

Despite three divorces, Burton expresses high hopes for his marriage to Susan and speaks glowingly of her. "Of course, I was reluctant to wed again after so many failures," he explains. "Then, too, Susan is 22 years younger than me. But I found her so fascinating I knew the marriage would last. She's intelligent, well bred and an accomplished pianist. Above all, she has blazing honesty. She cannot lie. If there's one thing I can fault her for, it's her tardiness. But then Elizabeth was the all-time winner for that."

He's equally optimistic about his career. Although he once believed he worked simply for money, "I've discovered that I too have been bitten by the bug. I am dedicated to my profession. Onstage I've changed my performances nightly to keep myself alive. And I've vastly improved my acting over the years by simplifying it to the least movement and sound and becoming less obvious. With my upcoming work in the theater and some challenging new films, I can go even further."

Perhaps far enough to assume someday the mantle of Olivier. But Burton does not need that honor to be happy. "I have so much to be grateful for," he says. "I've never been out of work or out of love. I've done such a gamut of plays and films and had so much excitement that I couldn't possibly ask for a more fulfilling life."

REWARD YOURSELF FOR POSITIVE BEHAVIOR

A painless way to overcome time-wasting habits is to give your ego the praise and compensation it needs.

By Edwin C.
Bliss

We go through life distributing rewards: a morsel to our dog when he performs a trick, a tip to the waitress who serves us promptly, a treat to the child who gets an outstanding report card, a hug for the spouse who gives us a gift.

In fact, we are generous in rewarding everyone except the one person who is most important to each of us — ourselves.

For many, the concept of rewarding oneself for a desired action seems contrived. But behavioral scientists tell us it is one of the most effective ways of altering our own behavior. If you would like to change some of your habits (and who wouldn't?), try using some self-bestowed rewards. In my work as a time management consultant, I have found this an excellent technique for helping clients overcome time-wasting habits. It often succeeds where willpower cannot.

The first step in setting up a reward system is to focus on a single habit you want to establish and to decide what specific action constitutes "success." In other words, don't resolve to reward yourself for being more prompt or for not procrastinating. Desirable as these goals may be, they are not specific enough to serve as rewardable objectives. Instead, select such actions as being at your desk at 8:00 A.M. sharp or starting your day with the most unpleasant task you have to do or setting up a more efficient system for record-keeping. The reward must be tied to a particular action, not to a character trait, even though character is what you hope to influence in the long run.

Second, recognize that there is usually no relationship between the magnitude of a reward and its effectiveness. Trivial things such as a stick of gum can be more useful than a fur coat in providing an incentive for changing habits because they permit frequent rewards for small successes, and that is the key to behavior change. The fur coat, however desirable, cannot serve as an immediate reward for each of the little steps one must take toward the ultimate goal.

Of course, a major reward, such as a fur coat, a car or a vacation, can motivate one toward important goals, but when the purpose is to change a habit, small but frequent rewards are far more effective. The point is to reinforce each small success and thus "shape" behavior.

Self-rewards can take many forms: a snack, a cup of coffee, a drink of water, a five-minute break, a short walk, an afternoon of goofing off, a moment to freshen up, reading time, a period of window-shopping, a haircut, time to play the piano or listen to music, an exercise break or permission from yourself to purchase some necessity (such as a shirt) or some luxury (such as a piece of jewelry). A reward also can be a nap, a bath, perhaps even extra television-viewing. Even the doing of a small chore can be used as a reward if it is something you would like to finish.

And, although tangible rewards are generally the most effective, you also can reward yourself mentally. Simply give yourself a mental pat on the back for each small accomplishment. Everyone reacts favorably to praise, and your subconscious mind doesn't care whether that praise comes from another party or from yourself. Lay it on a bit thick when you've succeeded in achieving even one small step toward your goal. Silly as it sounds, it not only builds self-esteem but also reinforces the appropriate behavior.

A second method of mental reinforcement, developed by Joseph R. Cautela, professor of psychology at Boston College, involves imagining yourself doing the thing you want to reinforce, and then imagining yourself getting an appropriate reward. Repeating this process over and over again can reinforce your tendency to perform the desired action.

Whatever method you use, whatever reward you select, remember that any action that is followed immediately by a pleasant event tends to be repeated and that you can put this truth to work in shaping your own behavior.

THE WARNING SIGNS OF TEENAGE SUICIDE

There are several, and if parents recognize them quickly and know how to act with good judgment, they could prevent a tragedy.

By Nancy Naglin

Gail was a quiet high-school junior. She was a good student, had lots of friends and was treasurer of Junior Achievement. But three weeks before her seventeenth birthday, she said good night to her parents and, withdrawing to her room, consumed a private cache of sleeping pills. She survived. Other young people are not as lucky.

"Suicide among young people aged 15 to 24 has increased in epidemic proportions," says Dr. Ari Klev, a psychiatrist at Cornell Medical School.

Suicide is now the second-leading cause of death after accidents among the country's young people, up from fifth place only five years ago.

To find out what's going wrong and why, FAMILY WEEKLY asked the experts. "There's much more pressure placed on young people to participate in activities before they are ready," says Dr. Klev.

"It's harder to grow up in this culture," says Dr. Herbert Hendin, director of psychosocial studies at the Center for Policy Research in New York City. Young people have to make wiser choices at an earlier age, as well as make sense of changing sex roles. But sex alone isn't responsible.

"The family," adds Dr. Klev, "has been undermined by such perplexities as a rising divorce rate, high mobility, fragmented structure of communities and the impact of the Vietnam years weakening goal-directed behavior."

Then there are the pressures of approaching maturity and taking responsibility for one's life and career. "Suicide among people 15 to 24," says Dr. Hendin, "is affected by how they feel about life when starting out on their own. Many young people believe they won't be able to shape their lives."

Who are the kids in trouble, and how can you spot them? Dr. Hendin cautions: "Worry about the kids 15, 16 and 17 years old who are alone, sitting in their rooms listening to rock music, not talking to anybody and not getting into trouble. The most seriously suicidal kids have stopped complaining. They only complain through their suicide attempts."

Dr. Hendin describes these young people as "deadened or numbed" to life. They may be outwardly cheerful and cooperative, but they have already adopted death as a defense against life. What do they have in common?

- Much isolation and loneliness in their lives.
- Contacts with people don't touch them deeply.
- Using work as a barrier against life, although it is often a pleasureless preoccupation.

When do you become alarmed? "When a kid is on a suicidal course, you may hear some subtle, philosophical statements about what it's all about," warns Dr. Klev. Always take these comments seriously. He suggests you also be alert to:

- Intense withdrawal
- Outspoken unhappiness
- Disturbances in appetite or sleep
- Loss of interest in sports
- Marked decline in school performance
- Giving away meaningful objects
- Any mention of suicide, even in a joking or lighthearted way.

"Nothing is ever lost by trying to talk," advises Dr. Hendin. "The biggest problem with people who are feeling down," points out Dr. Klev, "is that they don't think people understand."

It's much better to try to be reassuring than to preach. Dr. Klev advises being accessible and reasonable. "I know you're feeling down and in time it will get better," is a much better approach, he says, than "snap out of it," which is a put-down.

Adolescence is a time of depression, but no matter how hopeless or self-defeated a young person may feel, strong family support can help. A determiner most who are on a disaster course.

A personal message from the source, a leading Fifth Avenue, world-wide importer of rare gemstones.

We are in the business of buying and selling precious gemstones. In many instances, we deal directly with the mines of South America, Africa, and Asia. We have dealt with these mines for two generations. During this period, our purchases have amounted to many millions of dollars. We are, therefore, in a position to offer you a valuable collection of attractive, fine. With offices throughout the world, we always pay prompt attention to international currency. It's advantageous to use either U.S. Dollars, Swiss or French Francs, Japanese Yen, etc.

We buy and sell Rubies and Emeralds that cost many thousands of dollars per carat. For the ultra-rich to less valuable antique Rubies and Emeralds for average income individuals. But regardless of the intrinsic value of the precious stones we purchase, our experience and generations of dealing in genuine stones is your assurance that our genuine Rubies and Emeralds are the most and best value in any price category.

The most important message we wish to convey to you is that the Rubies and Emeralds offered to you—here and now—is that each Ruby... each Emerald... is Genuine... not Fake... and Glass... and Simulated. Each stone is individually Handcut and Polished for the most possible brilliance, clarity, beauty and value—by highly qualified Indian and Pakistan craftsmen.

DIAMONDS ARE A GIRL'S BEST FRIEND YET, RUBIES AND EMERALDS ARE CONSIDERED RARER... MORE VALUABLE THAN DIAMONDS

There is no question that diamonds are precious, valuable and popular with most people... but did you know that Rubies and Emeralds in corresponding size and quality exceed the value of diamonds?

Leading Precious Gemstone Authorities have stated this throughout the ages... including the Pharaohs, Kings and Queens of ancient and modern days... such as Catherine of Russia, the King of Sweden and the Shah of Iran. Wealthy collectors of precious stones consider them their most prized possession.

Rubies and Emeralds have been desired, bought and collected by Cleopatra... Alexander the Great, Kings and Queens of ancient and modern days... such as Catherine of Russia, the King of Sweden and the Shah of Iran. Wealthy collectors of precious stones consider them their most prized possession.

sult with your physician to be sure you are in normal health and your only problem is obesity. Individuals with heart, heart disease, diabetes or pregnant women should not use it at all. As a matter of fact, we insist that you show this entire program to your family physician... have him check you regularly to make sure you're not losing too much weight too fast... and advise that you're lost enough. ### STEP #1 — YOU EAT

In addition to the wide and tasty selection of food you enjoy morning and night, (all scientifically programmed to help maintain a high-level of FAT-BURN-OFF)...

STEP #2 — YOU TAKE "THERA-SLIM-100" hi amino compound.

Once a day, you take "THERA-SLIM-100" in a glass of water, (just like refreshing fruit juice). This hi-amino intake helps keep the fat-burning chain reaction going ALL 24 HOURS OF THE DAY — NON STOP!

STEP #3 — YOU HAVE AUTOMATICALLY STEPPED UP YOUR FAT-BURNING METABOLISM — SO YOU AUTOMATICALLY BURN OFF EXCESS WEIGHT!

In steadily no time at all, you make your inner furnace accelerate fat burn-off. Safely, gently, yet surely you cause a gradual change in your fat-burning metabolism as you "re-awaken" that inner furnace.

The result: Your body begins to eliminate stored-up fat and fluid at a rate so incredibly fast, the very first weekend alone YOU DRAIN AWAY AS MUCH AS 5 OR 6 POUNDS!

In short, with the "THERA-SLIM-100" weight-loss program, you force your body to automatically convert body fat to body fuel... automatically shrink fat cells... drain off excess fat... flush it right out of your system ONCE AND FOR ALL!

Never before has medical science offered you a safer, faster, more effective weight-loss method, (short of total fasting) than this super fat-burning breakthrough development at one of Boston's Leading Medical Schools.

up to 6 lbs. the first 48 hours

THE DOCTOR AND YOU

A COMPUTER X-RAY THAT COULD SAVE YOUR LIFE

ASA

It detects problems as small as a pinhead.

CAT-scanning has nothing to do with cats. Instead, it is a new way of taking X-rays, a method so good it promises to be the most important advance in diagnostic medicine since the development of the X-ray itself. CAT-scanning stands for computer-assisted tomography, and tomography is an X-ray technique that shows a picture of a site through the body at a given depth. The computer is used to bring out the details of this picture.

Think of CAT-scanning this way. Suppose you had a loaf of raisin bread and wanted to count and locate the raisins. You would slice the bread into little sections and then count and diagram the raisins as they appeared in the slices. CAT-scanning does the same for the body. The X-ray passes through the body at a given depth, and, when the picture is developed, it shows what that section through the body looks like, just as you would see the raisins in a slice of bread.

What is new in this process is the use of a computer, which can see and record much more subtle differences in an X-ray than can the human eye. It also can store this material and return it in different patterns. So by using the computer to assist the X-ray, the pictures produced contain much greater detail than ever before, enabling doctors to pick out in the brain or the chest an abnormality about the size of a pinhead.

Here's how the examination works. First, the patient is positioned so that he cannot move. (CAT-scanning is a slow procedure, and even the slightest movement will blur the picture.) Then the X-ray beam is passed through the head of the patient in the usual fashion. But instead of the X-ray being caught on a film, it is picked up by sensitive crystal detectors. These, in turn, transmit electrical impulses to the computer, which is programmed to analyze and store this information. Next the computer prepares an image of the slice it has seen through the skull and projects that image onto a cathode ray tube, like the tube in a TV set. For a permanent record, this picture can be photographed. By taking a series of these pictures, doctors can find abnormalities in the patient. Recent advances in scanner technology permit the system to be used not only for the skull, which is motionless, but also for the chest and abdomen, which move a little with breathing. Here, the patient is put on an examination table, and the scanner moves around the patient, taking a continuous series of scans of the entire body.

Although CAT-scanning produces very detailed and helpful pictures, the method does expose the patient to many times more X-ray than does the conventional X-ray machine. CAT-scanning will therefore continue to be used with great care and will not become part of the annual checkup in the near future.

CAT-scanning equipment also is expensive, the units costing upwards of $500,000. There are additional costs for installation and for training the technicians who operate the machines and the doctors who interpret the findings. This cost will make it impossible for every community to have CAT-scanners at first. But over the next few years, CAT-scanning should become a readily available addition to the arsenal in the war against disease.

"ACNE?"

Our girls got lasting help with Acne-Stat®

"With four daughters, we've tried the leading acne medications at our house, and nothing ever seemed to work until our girls met a Beverly Hills doctor and got some real help through a product she developed called 'Acne-Statin'."

The doctor explained that a bacteria called "C-Acne" located deep in the pores of the skin breaks the oil in the pores into Fatty Acids. The pores become blocked and irritated, resulting in blemishes, blackheads, whiteheads and pimples.

WHAT MAKES ACNE-STATIN SO DIFFERENT?

The doctor went on to say that many medications only attack acne at the surface level by attempting to dry-up the oil. Usually this is ineffective against Acne, and only irritates, dries and peels the skin. ACNE-STATIN goes right to the root of the problem. It liquifies at body temperature and deposits an anti-bacterial agent that kills bacteria on contact, and keeps on killing bacteria hours after each washing. The photographs below dramatically demonstrate Acne-Statin's continual effectiveness compared to the ineffectiveness of soap.

WHAT ABOUT SENSITIVE SKIN?

Debbie said that even when she leaves it on overnight it doesn't irritate or dry her skin. Dr. Karr explained that it is hypo-allergenic and that it contains a moisturizer. So it leaves even sensitive skin moist and soft with NO PEELING. REGARDLESS OF AGE or sex, Acne-Statin helps control skin irritations from occasional blemishes to chronic acne.

DR. ATIDA KARR's genuine concern for skin care was as impressive to me as her credentials. In addition to being an M.D. she also has an M.S. in Physiology and a Ph.D. in Cellular Physiology and Biochemistry. For five years she was involved in cancer research at the University of Pennsylvania under a federal grant.

Equally impressive were the letters she had received from youth and adults alike who had received significant help with Acne-Statin. HERE ARE EXCERPTS from two of those letters. The first one is from an editor of one of the nation's leading fashion magazines.

"Thank you for recommending your fabulous product. I have literally tried everything on the market, plus some of my own home remedies and have spent hundreds, in fact probably thousands of dollars on treatments, facials and the like and nothing has ever really cleared up my skin, much less left it in good condition. That's why I can't believe that such a pleasant lotion-like cleanser and treatment like Acne-Statin could work as thoroughly as it did. It really is fantastic. It's the only thing that has ever worked."

"Being 25 and having had occasional acne for the past 10 years, I have tried almost every commercial and prescription product, and the results have varied. Since using your Acne-Statin, for the first time I have a clear complexion. As an actress, it is necessary that I have my skin clear. My blemishes are completely gone. Not just on the surface, but all traces of infection have disappeared. My skin has reached a balanced condition."

SEE THE DIFFERENCE

In these microscopic photographs, each tiny "bubble" is a COLONY of millions of bacteria. Slide A is part of a facial culture taken eight hours after washing with soap. As you can see there are still countless bacterial colonies. Slide B shows a culture of the same facial area a full eight hours after washing with Acne-Statin. Acne-Statin kills bacteria on contact, and keeps on killing bacteria hours after each washing.

ARMOUR'S ARMORY

PASS TIME

Time passes, everyone agrees. But time is something no one sees. Results of time are all about: Of that there is no slightest doubt. I wonder, does it sneak up from The back or side? How does it come? If I but knew, I'd dodge, I'd hide. Away from it I'd run or glide. Time comes and goes, and leaves me shaken. Upon me, please, just cast an eye: Time passed, but didn't pass me by.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Danger In Your Faucet

Hundreds of people are needlessly burned each year because the hot-water thermostats in their homes are set at too high a temperature.

"I doubt that 1 out of 10 households knows the temperature of the water that comes out of their faucets," says Dr. Donald D. Trunkey, head of San Francisco General Hospital's burn center. He points out that 156°F. can produce a full-thickness (3rd-degree) burn in 1 second.

Where should you set your thermostat? Although many adults prefer 160°F. or more to insure hot showers, these temperatures are extremely dangerous, especially to children (or elderly people) unable to control the mixing of hot and cold water. Dr. Trunkey says 130°F. is adequate for most purposes. (You can check your water temperature by taking a reading under the faucet with a candy thermometer.)

To minimize danger to children, Dr. Trunkey reminds parents not to leave them unattended in the bathtub where "there are knobs within easy reach."

And be wary of hot water outside the house. An investigation by Medical World News of water temperature in hotels and hospitals found several exceeding the recommended limits.

Protecting Your Property

Even if your trees aren't quite as old as Maryland's 400-year-old Wye Oak (above), they can turn into money trees.

Many homeowners don't realize that the sudden destruction of their trees or plants may entitle them to an insurance claim as well as a tax deduction. In recognition of the importance and functional value of trees, insurance companies are raising the limits of claims for trees under homeowners' policies and, as a result, increasing numbers of people are calling in professionals to appraise their holdings.

According to Dr. L.C. Chadwick, emeritus prof. of horticulture at Ohio State Univ., more appraisals are done for the average homeowner than in special cases.

Then if the tree is suddenly damaged or must be removed, it will have more than sentimental value.

Shopping By Mail

Shopping by mail can mean variety without headaches if you follow these suggestions:

- Check the company's reputation before placing an order if you have any doubt about its product. The simplest way is to contact the Better Business Bureau nearest the company.

- Don't rely solely on a picture. Read the description of the item carefully, noting such details as size, weight and color.

- Keep a record of your order, including date, company name, address and phone number.

- Give explicit instructions with your order. Include your full address and specify if a substitute item is not acceptable.

- Look for a company policy on returning merchandise. If you don't see one, write and ask what it is.

- Don't overlook shipping charges — your order may be delayed.

- Don't send cash; use only check or credit-card number.

- Look for a guaranteed delivery date or allow 30 days.

If the merchandise doesn't arrive within the time specified, or if it's damaged or not what you ordered, write the company immediately, stating your complaint and giving proof of purchase. Be sure to keep a copy. If the company doesn't respond satisfactorily, contact the medium in which the ad appeared or the Mail Order Action Line, 6 East 43rd St., New York, N.Y. 10017, a consumer-assistance program organized by mail-order companies.

Music Is Therapy For Handicapped Kids

Playing a musical instrument is fun with a purpose for the physically handicapped children participating in a new program run by the Moss Rehabilitation Hospital and the Settlement Music School in Philadelphia. Each of the children will learn to play an instrument selected to strengthen a physical function. For example, a child with a weak arm might learn to play the drums.

"In many cases, when the child leaves the hospital with a recommended program of therapy, he won't follow it because of lack of motivation," says Bernard Henderson, Settlement's director of programs. "We thought if playing an instrument could be designed so that it performed a therapeutic function, there wouldn't be this problem."

After consultations with specialists, each child selects the instrument to be played. Then an adaptive device, such as a special stand, may be devised to make playing the instrument easier. Children begin with half-hour private lessons and supervised home practice (parents also receive instruction so they can be sure their child is practicing properly), and then may join a performing group when they're more advanced.

Quick Takes

There's a new way for people to overcome a fear of contact lenses — hypnosis. The American Optometric Assoc. says many optometrists are using hypnosis to calm the fears of patients apprehensive about placing the lenses on their eyes.

And in the now-for-something-completely-different department: A N.J. woman wanted her automobile checked because it didn't sound right. When the mechanic opened the hood, he spotted the cause of the trouble — a 4-ft. boa constrictor wrapped around the air filter.

Two-thirds of hospitals responding to a recent survey by the American Hospital Assoc. said they would be forced to cut back or eliminate certain patient services if proposed Government ceilings on hospital-spending go into effect. Almost 1/2 of the responding hospitals said clinical services, such as X-rays and diagnostic labs, would be the first to go.

Good news for calorie counters — a national fast-food franchise is testing drive-in salad bars at selected locations. Salad to go, anyone?

Worried about a rerun of last year's bone-chilling weather? The National Weather Service says that, based on climatic records, the odds are at least 30 to 1 against such a severe winter. But it advises residents in the Northeast and central Mississippi Valley that they're most likely to be hit by colder than normal temperatures.

Merit Attracts Large Numbers of High Tar Smokers.

Low tar MERIT with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco gaining solid support from "taste" smokers.

---

Most current MERIT smokers have come directly from high tar cigarettes.

It's clear: low tar MERIT is delivering the kind of taste that can satisfy high tar smokers, the toughest "taste" critics of low tar smoking.

The reason is a real advance in tobacco technology that results in a way to boost natural tobacco flavor without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

It's called 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. MERIT and MERIT 100's are packed with this special tobacco.

LOW TAR-ENRICHED FLAVOR

And both were taste-tested against a number of higher tar cigarettes.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of both MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested.

Cigarettes having up to 60% more tar!

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

And you can taste it.
